SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 24TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

The Liquidator of THE BRITISH GUIANA ICE COMPANY, Plaintiff.

versus

BIRCH, Defendant.

The British Guiana Ice Company was under a lease dated 6th October, 1899, tenant for the period of ten years from the 23rd August, 1898, of lots 15 and 16, Cummingsburg, the property of the defendant. The plaintiff avers that the Company is the owner of the plant, machinery, tanks and other appurtenances of the ice factory on those lots, that a covering mortgage thereon to secure debentures was passed on the 28th of April, 1900, and that the defendant has taken possession of the said plant, machinery, tanks and other appurtenances, and refuses to deliver the same, and the plaintiff claims an order entitling him to enter on the said lots and remove the said property of the Company, and, in addition, $10,000 compensation, or (in the alternative) if he is not entitled to the said property, a declaration that the same is subject to the mortgage, or (as a further alternative) if he is not entitled to the said property and it is not subject to the said mortgage, $60,000 as compensation.

The defence is that the Company was not the owner of the said plant, machinery, tanks and other appurtenances, but that they were fixtures erected by a prior tenant, and as such the property of the defendant, as owner of the soil, and that if the Company or the plaintiff was or is entitled to remove them, as a condition precedent to such removal, security must be given for the execution of such works as are necessary to put the buildings into good and tenantable repair as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf, and that no such security has been given or offered. A counter-claim is added to the defence, claiming (1) damages for breach of the covenant in the lease to keep and deliver up, in good repair, the said buildings, the amount claimed being $10,100, or $1,200, according to the decision of the Court on the question whether the Company was bound to deliver up the said buildings in good order as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf, or to deliver them in substantial repair for the purpose of an ice factory; (2) if the plaintiff is held entitled to remove the plant, machinery, etc., the sum of $530 75, expended by the defendant since the expiration of the lease in effecting repairs to the plant and machinery; and (3) $3,600 for loss of the rental value of the building from the 23rd August, 1908, at $240 a month.

There being no statutory provision for cases of this kind, the questions raised must be decided in accordance with the Roman Dutch Law, which is the common law of the colony. The substantial question of law involved is whether a lessee annexing materials to the soil, or, as in the present case, attaching thereto engines, tanks and other appurtenances of an ice factory, ceases to be the owner of the things annexed or attached, the ownership thereof passing by accession to the owner of the soil. It is laid down by Burge (vol. II, p. 15, section 8) that "movables affixed to land or buildings acquire the quality of immovables by reason not alone of their being affixed but of their being affixed with the intention of permanently remaining. No such intention can be presumed when the person by whom they are affixed has only a temporary interest in the land or house: movables therefore, which would be immovable, if affixed by the owner continue movable as between him and his tenant. The code of Holland permits the tenant to remove them where it can be effected without material injury to the property." This, in our opinion, correctly gives the law of this colony as to a lessee's rights during his tenancy in respect of materials, engines, etc., by him annexed or affixed to the soil (cf. Voet XIX, 2, 14). But if such materials, etc., have not been disannexed or detached during the tenancy, what are the lessee's rights? Is he still entitled to disannex, detach and remove the things annexed or affixed to the soil, or is he no longer entitled to do so, but only entitled to claim compensation for such things and if so how must the amount of such compensation be determined? Van der Kessel (Thes. 213) lays down "But a lessee who has built with the consent of the owner may recover only the value of the materials, but cannot on this ground retain the land although it is bound to him by way of legal mortgage until he should receive the value. If he has built without such consent he may before the termination of the lease, remove that which he has built."

It appears from Voet VI. 1, 36 (ch. V. 3, 21) that on the real owner appearing and claiming his land, a bona fide possessor under certain circumstances had the right of removing materials affixed by him to the soil, and that where he had this right, if the materials were not removed he could claim only a sum representing the benefit he would have gained by removing them, a benefit which would, we think, have been practically the same as if he sold them for removal. We know of no authority which shows that such possessor, after he had ceased to possess, could claim a right of re-entry for the purpose of removing what he had annexed to the soil. A lessee as already said had the right of removing during his tenancy materials annexed to the soil. The position of a lessee who had not detached them during his tenancy, therefore if he had no right of retention of the leased property after his tenancy ended on account of his outlay thereon, would be analogous to that of a bona fide possessor entitled to remove during his possession materials annexed to the soil, but who had given up possession without doing so. The preamble to the Placaat of the 26th September, 1658, shows that lessees of rural tenements claimed the right of retention, but we are not aware of any authority showing that a similar claim was made by the lessees of urban tenements, and the Placaat settled the question so far as lessees of rural tenements were concerned.

Articles 10, 11 and 12 of the Placaat of 26th September, 1658, are mentioned by Van der Kessel in a footnote, but it is to be noted that those articles are not cited as expressly enacting the provisions of Thesis 213 (cf. Thes. 674), and it may well be that the rules contained in Thes. 213, which are stated as part of the general Roman Dutch law, without distinction of urban and rural tenements, are so stated either because they had, always been the law as to lessees of urban tenements and had been declared by the Placaat applicable to lessees of rural tenements, or because they had at the time Van der Kessel wrote, been adopted as part of the common law on the analogy of the principles embodied in the Placaat, those rules being in consonance with the two well-established principles of Roman Dutch law quicquid inaedificatur solo cedit, and nemo alterius detrimento locupletior fieri debet. The rules laid down by Van der Kessel have been recognized in South Africa as forming part of the general Roman Dutch law (De Beers Consolidated Mines v. London and S. African Exploration Co., 10 Juta 359, confirmed on appeal, L.R. Ap. Cas. (1895) 457), and appear to be regarded so in Ceylon, and we think they form part of the law of this Colony. Van der Kessel's theses is one of the works required by order of the States General, 10th October, 1774, to be kept for reference in the Courts of Justice in this Colony (cf. Report of Commissioners on Criminal and Civil Justice, appendix A, question 10), and all the general Roman Dutch Law of Holland existing at the time that he wrote (including the Placaat of the 26th September, 1658, and any rules based thereon) was introduced into this colony by the resolution of the States General of the 4th October, 1774, which declares such law shall be in force here. There was nothing in the original circumstances of this colony which would (cf. De Freitas et al v. Exor. of Jardin, 18th October, 1905), show that this part of the Roman Dutch Law was unnecessary, unsuitable or inapplicable, or that cases could not reasonably be expected to arise, in which the Placaat or any rules founded thereon would be appropriate (cf. Thorburn and Stewart, L.R., 3 P.C., 478). It is obvious that the mere non-existence of any concrete case, to which the law could be applied, at the date of the colony's foundation, would not be a sufficient reason for holding that the Placaat and rules based thereon were not introduced here, as similar reasoning would prove the non-introduction of some of the most elementary laws for the preservation of life and property.

In our opinion the laws of this colony as to improvements made on leased land may be accurately stated in the words used by Sir H. De Villiers, C.J., and approved by the Privy Council in the De Beers Consolidated Mines v. The London and South African Exploration Co. (ubi cit., pp. 372-373):—"In the absence of special agreement, a lessee annexing materials, not being growing trees, to the soil, is presumed to do so for the sake of temporary and not permanent use, and as between himself and the owner of the land does not, during his tenancy, lose his ownership in the materials. He may, before the expiration of his term, disannex the materials and remove them from the land, subject to the rights of the landlord to demand security against any serious damage to the land, and to interdict any depreciation of his tacit hypothecation for unpaid rent. At the expiration of the lease, however, the owner of the land becomes the owner of all materials then remaining annexed. . . . The lessee has no right of retention after the expira"tion of his term, but may, by action, recover the value of the materials annexed by him with the landlord's consent, and the land becomes subject to a legal hypothec for such compensation when duly assessed. Improvements necessary for the protection or preservation of the land may not be removed even during the tenancy, but, on the other hand, they must be compensated for."

The present case has some special features and it is necessary to consider whether they in any way affect the application to it of the law thus laid down. First, it appears from the evidence that the defendant was present as a Director of the Company at the Directors' meeting of the 21st August, 1908, when it was decided to call an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Company for the 31st August, to consider the position, that he raised no objection when informed that the leased premises would not be given up till that General Meeting decided what was to be done, but that he took possession on the lease ending, without awaiting that Meeting; and also that as a Director he joined in a sub-lease to Messrs. Wieting and Richter of the said premises and plant and machinery terminating the day after the Company's lease, which sub-lease in effect disabled the Company to remove the said plant and machinery during the Company's tenancy. Whatever might be the effect of these facts in other proceedings, we do not think that in this action the Company (or the plaintiff as representing the Company) can be held to have acquired thereby any right more extensive than that given by the general law of landlord and tenant already stated.

Second, the plant, machinery, tanks and other appurtenances were annexed to the soil not by the British Guiana Ice Company, but by the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company who occupied the same premises before the present Company. It appears from the statement of defence, that up to the time when the present Company entered into occupation of lots 15 and 16, the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company was tenant thereof under an agreement for a lease for 21 years from the 1st July, 1891, at a rent of $200 per month. According to the law already laid down, the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company continued during its tenancy the owner of the plant, machinery and other appurtenances, and such plant, machinery, etc., therefore formed part of the assets of that Company, which assets were transferred to, and vested in, the British Guiana Ice Company with the knowledge and consent of the defendant, who was a party to the agreement for sale of the 16th August, 1898. A lease of the premises on which the said plant, machinery, etc., were set up, was subsequently, on the 6th October, 1899, granted to the British Guiana Ice Company, for a period of 10 years from the 23rd August, 1898, the lease by its recitals, operative part and schedules, and by its covenant for division of the taxes between the lessor and the lessee, clearly indicating that the Company was the owner of the plant, machinery, etc. These being the facts, the Company in our opinion, in the absence of any special provision in the lease, under the law already stated continued owner during its tenancy of the plant, etc., annexed to the soil and not having removed it before the tenancy ended, the plaintiff is entitled to obtain (not an order for delivery, but) an order for payment of compensation, which until paid will be secured by a legal or tacit hypothec.

Much evidence has been put in as to the way in which the plant, machinery, tanks, etc., are annexed to the soil, and much argument has been used on the question whether or not, according to law, they or some of them would be regarded as fixtures. We think the plant, machinery, tanks, etc., were "annexed to the soil" within the meaning of that phrase as used in the law already stated and that the evidence shows the possibility of removing such plant, etc. (other than some of its foundations) without serious or material injury to the leased premises. As far as movable utensils, tools, etc., unannexed to the soil but left on the leased premises by the Company are concerned, the defendant does not contest his liability to deliver them.

The amount of compensation payable by the defendant is governed by the principle laid down by Van der Keessel and by Article 11 of the Placaat which prescribe that only the value of the material used shall be taken without sand, lime or wages. The reasonable construction of this provision is that all the cost of erection shall be excluded and only the value of the things if sold for removal shall be allowed; and this construction is equitable as between landlord and tenant, on the one hand giving the tenant just what he might have obtained by disannexing during his tenancy the things annexed to the soil, and on the other hand not requiring the landlord to pay more than he could obtain by himself selling such things for removal. The principal evidence as to value of the plant, machinery, etc., in question, is that given by Mr. Seedorff. From that it appears that there are two boilers which might be sold for $500 each, two pumps, the saleable value of which is about $300 each, two engines probably unsaleable save as old iron, and one large and some smaller tanks and other smaller articles which might be sold but the value of which he cannot accurately estimate. Mr. Seedorff puts the saleable value of the engines proper at $4 a ton, since they could be easily removed, being close to a wharf; on the other hand the witness H. H. Lewis estimates $1 a ton as a fair market price if sold for removal, and $4 if delivered at his own wharf. This witness admitted, however, in cross-examination, that the market price for good old iron was $5 a ton. Taking Mr. Seedorff's valuation ($4) which we believe to be correct, and the number of tons saleable according to Mr. Lewis being about 115, the parts of the machinery, etc., saleable as old iron, would be worth $460. As Mr. Seedorff states that the engines, apart from the boilers, pumps, tanks, and all smaller pieces saleable separately, would weigh about 15 tons each, we conclude that Mr. Lewis' estimate of the quantity of old iron saleable includes the tanks. The tanks may be worth more than the amount for which they could be sold as old iron, but the evidence put in on behalf of the plaintiff in respect of this and other points of value is very meagre and inadequate. Mr. Lewis says that in addition to the old iron which could have been sold, there was also piping and Mr. Seedorff also speaks of small articles which were saleable separately, adding $200 to include all such things the total would amount to $2,260, apart from the moveable utensils, tools, etc., specified in the statement of defence which the defendant is bound to deliver. The solid concrete foundations of the engines and other part of the plant could not we think be removed without causing damage to the leased premises, the repairing of which would probably equal any value obtainable for the materials of the broken up foundations. No addition therefore can be made on account of these foundations to the compensation payable. The contention of the plaintiff's counsel that the compensation should be the amount of the item "Ice plant, $232,000," which appears in the Company's balance sheets, but which is shewn by the evidence not to be the original cost, and to include the cost of erection, improvements, etc., etc., is wholly unsustainable.

The first question which arises in connection with the defendant's counter-claim, is whether the Company was bound to deliver up to him the leased premises on the termination of its lease in good condition and repair as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf. From the transports put in evidence and the oral testimony of the defendant and his former partner Mr. Chatterton, it appears that lot 16, Cummingsburg, was legally vested in Ellis Kisingbury & Co., as security for a debt owing by Birch & Co., when the lease of 6th October, 1899, to which defendant was a party was executed, but that lot 16, is now, as well as lot 15, vested in the defendant. The defendant contends that at the time the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company placed the plant, machinery, etc., on lots 15 and 16, Cummingsburg, the buildings thereon were let and occupied as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf; that the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company before the termination of their tenancy would not have been entitled to remove such plant, machinery etc., unless it left the leased premises in the same condition as they were when first occupied by that Company: that the present Company is merely the successor of the West Indian and British Guiana Company, and therefore is under the like obligation of delivering up the leased premises in good condition and repair as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf. This argument is deprived of its force by the fact that the present Company was not tenant of the leased premises as successor or representative of the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company but a new tenancy differing from that of the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Co., in length of term, rent, etc., was created by the lease granted to the present Company, on the 6th October, 1899. The present Company held and occupied lots 15 and 16, under and by virtue of that lease, and not as successors to the West Indian and British Guiana Ice Company. The rule both of Roman Dutch Law and of English law is that in the absence of special provision a lessee is bound to deliver up leased premises on the termination of his tenancy in the same condition in which he received them. In the present case when the premises were leased to the Company they were not occupied and let as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf, but were (as at the termination of the lease) occupied by the plant, machinery, etc., of the Ice factory, such plant, etc., being, as already said, recognized in the lease as the property of the Company; and there is no provision in the lease that on the termination of the tenancy the leased premises shall be converted into a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf before they are given up. Under these circumstances the defendant cannot claim that such premises should have been delivered up in good order as a mercantile office, warehouse and wharf, even assuming (what is not certain) that the West Indian and British Ice Company, which, with the landlord's consent, converted the leased premises into factory buildings could have been compelled to reconvert them into a mercantile office and warehouse (Voet XIX., 2, 29). For the same reasons the Company was not bound to rebuild the ice vault which was not in existence when the lease of the 6th October, 1899, was executed, or when the term thereby created began. The claim, therefore, of which the details are set out in the second schedule to the Statement of Defence, cannot be allowed.

The liability of the Company to repair and hand over in good order is governed by clauses 10 and 11 of the lease. Clause 10 requires the Company during the lease to "keep the said buildings, erections, plant, machinery, fixtures and effects in good and substantial repair and condition, and in such good and substantial repair and condition" to surrender to the lessor at the end of the tenancy "such of the said buildings and erections as are the property of the lessor." Clause 11 provides that the Company "shall not be liable for such repairs to such of the said buildings and erections as are the property of the lessor, as are or may become necessary in consequence of natural decay or ordinary and reasonable wear and tear which shall be effected by the lessor."

The meaning of these provisions is, we think, plain. While the Company is, by clause 10, required (no doubt with a view of increasing the value of the lessor's hypothec for rent) to keep in good order and repair during the lease not only the buildings and erections belonging to the lessor but also its own plant and machinery, etc., the Company is required to surrender in good condition only such buildings and erections as "are" at the date of the lease the property of the lessors; and clause 11 limits the Company's liability for repairs to the lessor's buildings and erections by expressly providing that the lessor's obligation, under the Roman Dutch or Common law to make all such repairs as are, or may become necessary in consequence of natural decay or ordinary and reasonable wear and tear, shall remain unaffected.

This being so, the defendant though he might during the lease have required (if need arose) the plant, etc., to be kept in repair, is not, in our opinion, entitled to claim that the plant, machinery, etc., should have been delivered up in good and substantial repair and condition by the Company at the expiration of its lease. It may be added that the evidence of Mr. Seedorff, a competent engineer (notwithstanding the evidence put forward on behalf of the defendant as to the condition of the plant and machinery, etc., after they were in his possession unused for some weeks) convinces us that they were substantially in good repair and condition at the end of the Company's tenancy. Mr. Seedorff's evidence is corroborated by the fact that the machinery was in use up to the last moment. The sums specified in the third schedule of the statement of defence are claimed only in the event of the plaintiff being held entitled to remove the plant and machinery, and the Court, having held he is not so entitled, this claim fails. But, in any event, it follows, from what has been said, that the defendant is not entitled to claim payment of the first 28 items of the third schedule of the statement of defence. The 29th item relates to cleaning, scaling and overhauling the boilers. On the 13th October, 1908, the plaintiff wrote the defendant the letter (marked "K") which states that he is willing that steps should be taken to keep the boilers in order, and that the expense be paid by the Company if it is decided that the Company is entitled to remove them; and the plaintiff, in his evidence, states that he gave no authority to incur any expenditure beyond the authority given by that letter. As already said, the Court holds that the plaintiff is not entitled to remove the boilers, but only to obtain the value thereof if sold for removal at the termination of the Company's lease. Item 29, therefore, represents money expended on boilers which the defendant, at the expiration of that lease, was entitled to retain and has not increased the value of those boilers at that date, as given by Mr. Seedorff, but only when they became the defendant's property. Under these circumstances we think the defendant is not entitled to claim payment of that item.

The evidence before us is, in our opinion, insufficient to sustain the counter-claim for putting the buildings on lot 16 in good and substantial repair as factory buildings. Many of the items in the 5th schedule relate not to the buildings and erections which, as the property of the lessor, the Company was bound to hand over at the termination of the lease in substantial repair, but to insulations connected with the Company's machinery, etc. The lessor, as already pointed out, was, under the lease, bound to do all ordinary repairs rendered necessary by reasonable wear and tear or natural decay, and the witness Ford, called for the defence, in reply to the Court, stated that if such repairs had been attended to, he would have excepted the buildings to have been in better condition. The lessor had full power of entry to make any such repairs as might be required but no repairs appear from the evidence to have been done by him. The only item which on the evidence can be allowed, is that of $50 for the repair of the roof of the boiler room, which is shown to have been damaged by the fall of a chimney during the Company's tenancy, and not repaired.

The defendant's counsel abandoned all claim for loss of rental value from the beginning of November, 1908, and the defendant himself states in his evidence that a claim at the rate of $240 per month is excessive. The defendant himself took possession on the 23rd August, 1908, on the termination of the Company's lease, and has been continuously in occupation since then. The evidence does not show that his occupation has been rendered other than beneficial by any breach of duty on the part of the Company, or even that the premises, which it appears from Mr. Wight's evidence are not very easily let and cannot command a high rental, could readily have been let during the period from August to November, however good their condition might have been. We therefore think that the claim for loss of rental value during that period is unsustainable.

It was urged by the plaintiff's counsel that if the Court held that the Company was not entitled to remove the plant, machinery, etc., a declaration should be made that it is subject to the covering mortgage of the 23rd April, 1900. No authority was cited which would justify the making of such a declaration in this action, to which the mortgagee is not a party, and which is not framed as an action to enforce the mortgage, or to declare the relative rights of the debenture holders for whose security the mortgage was given and the shareholders of the Company. The Court cannot make the declaration sought.

It follows from the foregoing that judgment must be given in favour of the plaintiff for the sum of $2,269 less the $50 allowed the defendant and the defendant must deliver up the movable utensils, tools, etc., specified in the fourth Schedule of the statement of defence. The defendant must bear the costs of the action which we think was properly brought in the General Jurisdiction.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

ALBERT EARNSHAW, Actg J.

THIS 30TH DAY JUNE, 1909.

DAVIS, plaintiff,

versus

"THE ARGOSY" Co., LTD., et al, defendants.

The plaintiff claims $5,000 as damages on account of an alleged libel contained in an article in the "Sportsman's Argosy" of the 15th March, 1909. The article is set out at length in the Statement of Claim and relates to a dinner given by the plaintiff on the 9th March, 1909, at the Tower Hotel to His Excellency the Governor, Sir F. M. Hodgson, K.C.M.G., at which no speeches were made. The innuendoes pleaded are that the article meant: (1) "that the plaintiff is a man of no self-respect and that he relied largely upon the hospitality of Sir F. M. Hodgson and desired his return to the colony in order to enjoy through him social and other benefits; (2) that the plaintiff as member of the Combined Court had been guilty of gross misconduct and had supported Sir F. M. Hodgson in measures which were in the interest of the Governor himself only, regardless of the rights of the inhabitants of the colony; (3) that the plaintiff as a member of that Court was guilty of dishonourable and dishonest conduct and hesitated at nothing to serve his own ends; (4) that he was unfit to fill the position of Financial Representative and was untrue to his constituents, and had forfeited, and deserved to forfeit their respect, confidence and esteem; (5) that he had aided and supported His Excellency Sir F. M. Hodgson in his mal-administration of the colony in order to obtain from him the distinction of J.P.; (6) that the plaintiff was and is a man of no principle and a traitor to the country of his adoption; (7) that he was and is actuated by corrupt and improper motives in the discharge of his duties as a member of the Combined Court; (8) that as a member of the said Court, he "had accepted bribes from persons in high places, especially the Surgeon General, Dr. Godfrey, and had corruptly used his influence with His Excellency Sir F. M. Hodgson and others to obtain pecuniary and other advantages and favours for Dr. Godfrey and the said other persons; (9) that His Excellency Sir F. M. Hodgson and the other guests were so ashamed of being entertained by a person of the character and low standing of the plaintiff and of being seen by the public, that they entered the Tower Hotel and retired therefrom by the back door."

The publication of the article is admitted, but the defence is that it does not bear and is incapable of bearing, the defamatory meaning set out in the innuendoes or any defamatory meaning whatever; that it was published, without malice or intention to injure or make any charge against the plaintiff, and merely as a joke, the whole article purporting on the face of it to be an imaginary and apocryphal account of the proceedings at the dinner and being incapable of being otherwise understood by persons of ordinary intelligence; and lastly, that the article is a fair comment made without malice or intention to injure on a matter of public interest, namely, the fact that His Excellency the Governor Sir F. M. Hodgson had accepted an invitation to dine and had dined with the plaintiff whose standing in the colony was insufficient to warrant his giving such an invitation, or the Governor's acceptance of it.

The present case is governed by the Roman-Dutch Law of defamation, as modified by statute or usage. The Ordinance 3 of 1846 does not in our opinion substitute the whole English Law for the whole Roman-Dutch Law in cases of libel as it does in cases of slander, but merely allows in cases of libel certain pleas which had previously been introduced into English law by statute. We see no sufficient reason for giving the Ordinance a more extensive interpretation, nor are we aware of any previous decision of the Full Court, or any long-standing practice under the Ordinance inconsistent with our view of its meaning. The difference, however, between the English and the Roman-Dutch Law is not very extensive. The old Roman-Dutch rule of awarding compensation in the form of an apology by the defendant to the plaintiff and of payment by the defendant of a sum of money for the use of the poor, if ever in force here, is shown by a long series of cases to have become obsolete, and to have been superseded by the English system of awarding damages and practically the only difference is, that explained by Sir H. De Villiers, O.J., in Bennet v. Morris (10 Juta 223), as follows:—"The rule of the Roman Dutch Law differs if at all, from that of the English law in allowing greater latitude in disproving malice. Under both systems the mere use of defamatory words affords presumptive proof of malice, but under our law, as I understand it, the presumption may be rebutted, not only by the fact that the communication was a privileged one—in which case express malice must be proved—but by such other circumstances (examples of which are given in Voet XLVII. 10. 20) as satisfy the Court that the animus injuriandi did not exist." It is urged, by the defendant's counsel, that the fact that words are spoken or written in jest rebuts any presumption of intention to injure and Voet XLVII. 10. 20, is quoted in support of their argument. The title in Voet which is cited deals not only with libelli famosi but with all species of injuria, and the passage relied on, if literally interpreted, applies only to blows, etc., given another. It may be metaphorically applicable to cases of alleged defamation by spoken or written words, but we do not think the Roman Dutch and English law substantially differ in respect of such a defence. Under both systems the Court has to decide, not what was the meaning intended by the defendant of the words used (cf. McLaughlin v. Impy, 5 Buc. 77), but what is the meaning which they reasonably and probably would bear to ordinary bystanders or readers (Fisher v. Clement, 10 B and C. 72); and under the English as well as under the Roman-Dutch law the defence that the words were spoken or written in jest is, in our opinion, sufficient, provided the Court is satisfied that the words or writing were or was a harmless jest, and by ordinary bystanders or readers reasonably and probably would be understood as being merely a jest (Dolby v. Newnes, 3 Times L.R., 393; Donoghue v. Hayes, (1831), Hayes, Irish Exch.: 265 cited Odgers on Libel, 4th Ed.: p. 119.) If the probable consequence of the words or writing would be to injure the reputation among his fellows of the person meant, then the speaker or writer is under both legal systems held to have intended such consequence, and the plea that the words were spoken or written in jest, is no defence. The contention of the plaintiff's counsel that the defence of harmless jest applies only to cases of slander and not to those of libel is not, we think, tenable (Dolby v. Newnes, ubi sup. and Australian Newspaper Co., Ltd. v. Bennet (1894) A. C. 284), though no doubt it is easier in the one class of cases than in the other to show that the words would reasonably be understood only as a jest and be productive of no harm. The further principle laid down by Voet. (XLVII. 10. 20) to which the defendant's counsel has called attention, viz., that if the meaning of the words is doubtful, an innocent meaning must be attributed to them is, in our opinion, but little (if at all) more extensive than the English Rule that the onus of proving the libel rests on the plaintiff and that if a defamatory meaning is not satisfactorily established the action must be dismissed.

There can, we think, be no doubt that no reader of ordinary intelligence would regard the article in question as being a prosaic, veracious and absolutely reliable account of the dinner, or would think that all the statements therein were to be taken literally. The description of the plaintiff as the Ambassador for the Empire of Barbados, of the dinner itself as an event of important political significance in diplomatic circles, and as a diplomatic function of momentous character, of the viands and liquid refreshments supplied and of the reception of the principal guest, the statements put in the mouths of the speakers, many of them statements which no man would even after dinner make, the likening of the passing through the portals of the Georgetown Club to a passage through fire and water and other parts of the article would, in our opinion, effectually preclude any person of ordinary intelligence from putting a literal construction on what he read. This must, we think, be borne in mind when the innuendoes pleaded are considered. The innuendoes (2 to 8, inclusive as stated above) relate to the plaintiff's conduct as a member of the Combined Court and are the most serious of all. The passages in the article relied on in support of innuendoes 2 to 7 (inclusive) are the following statements contained in the speech attributed to the Governor:—"He only wished that the constitution of this colony gave him the autocratic powers he had in the Island (i.e., Barbados) then the people would have seen what changes he would have introduced. But it was not so, and were it not for the ever faithful, ever loyal support he had received from Mr. Wood Davis he was afraid his regime in this colony would have been a barren one indeed. But whatever his failures may have been no one could deny that he had ever done his utmost to pursue that policy which he considered best for himself, irrespective of opposition or the rights of others. The pity was that there were not more leal-hearted patriots like his friend Mr. Wood Davis who would have stood by him when he was assailed in every quarter. They would believe him, he felt assured, when he told them that he considered a J.P.-ship a very inadequate reward to make his friend Mr. Davis and they would be pleased to learn that he had recommended him to the King for the distinction of C.M.G. . . . He was sure he (Mr. Davis) would take it as a slight indication of the high regard in which he held him as a man and a colleague. . . . It was true he was going away and it might be for ever. If he were promoted he would be only too glad to wipe the mud of the colony from off his feet and bid a long farewell, but if promotion were denied him then he would like to return to complete the great work all of them must ever have before them, the qualification for a first class pension. On sitting down he begged to thank Mr. Wood Davis for all his kindness and especially for this crowning mark of his regard. . . . The press never thought as he thought or looked at things through the same spectacles. The result was he and they differed and people were inclined to put more weight on the paper's views than on his, which was disconcerting to say the least of it. But with two such stalwarts as his friends Mr. Wood Davis and Dr. Godfrey he was prepared to go through fire and water and even the portals of the Georgetown Club in his desire to further what he considered was in his own best interest. He again thanked Mr. Wood Davis for all his kindness to him since he arrived in the colony and hoped that he would as readily place his invaluable friendship and still more valuable assistance at the disposal of his locum tenens during his absence."

No special facts are averred and proved to have been generally known which would affect the impression produced by these passages on those who read them, and even if viewed in the worst light they cannot, in our opinion, reasonably be held to convey the imputation that the plaintiff knowingly supported measures in the Combined Court which he knew were put forward by the Governor in his own interest only, and knowingly did so in order to obtain the distinction of J.P. though they might probably be understood to mean that the plaintiff (not especially as a Financial Representative but) in general was a friendly supporter of the Governor and had consequently been made a J.P. We do not think the passages reasonably and fairly read sustain any of the six innuendoes mentioned or would convey to persons of ordinary intelligence the meaning, that the plaintiff as member of the Combined Court had been guilty of gross misconduct, had supported the Governor in measures which were to the Governor's interest only, regardless of the rights of others, hesitated at nothing to serve his own ends, had forfeited the respect and confidence of his constituents, had supported the Governor in maladministration in order to obtain the distinction of J.P., or is a man of no principle and is a traitor to this colony in which he has lived for many years.

The part of the article relied on in support of the 8th innuendo, is the following passage in the speech attributed to Dr. Godfrey:—"He could speak 'feelingly of Mr. Wood Davis's disinterested kindness to people in high places, having himself been 'the recipient of a favour such as he could never 'possibly forget so long as he remained Surgeon 'General."

Even if written ironically (which is not averred), this does not, we think, impute that the plaintiff has accepted bribes and corruptly used any influence he may possess to obtain pecuniary and other advantages for Dr. Godfrey and others, as alleged in the innuendo.

The first innuendo, viz., that the article meant that the plaintiff is a man of no self-respect, relied largely on Sir F. M. Hodgson's hospitality, and desired his return in order to enjoy through him social and other benefits, is mainly based on statements the plaintiff is represented as having made, in which the plaintiff is said to have assured those present that he had "always the supremest delight 'in visiting Government House, a delight he had 'never experienced before. Sir Frederic had the 'art of making people like him (the speaker) feel so 'much at home in his presence that one immediately 'forgot he was Governor, but merely a man and a 'colleague. Gentlemen, Sir Frederic was leaving, 'it might be for ever, but he prayed for his own '(the speaker's) sake, that it was not so," and later in the same speech, that Sir Frederic 'had gained the unbounded esteem and admiration of the speaker who would never forget 'as long as he lived the golden opportunities 'afforded him during Sir Frederic's regime, 'especially this crowning act of friendship on the 'part of Sir Frederic to honour his humble board 'and humbler fare by his august and auspicious 'presence." The phrase "golden opportunities" if read in connection with the reference to the Governor's attendance at the dinner as a crowning act of friendship, and with the rest of the imaginary speech, does not, we think, fairly convey any imputation of a base nature, nor does the imaginary speech convey more than that the plaintiff was pleased with the attention paid him, and the innuendo as pleaded is not, we think, in substance proved.

The only remaining innuendo, viz., that the Governor and other guests were so ashamed of being entertained by the plaintiff, and of being seen by the public that they entered the Hotel and retired by the back door, is substantially proved.

The Court must have regard to the whole of the alleged libel and to its natural and obvious signification, although most of the innuendoes pleaded have not been proved (Harvey v. French, 1 Cr. & M. 11.). We have no doubt that the natural tendency and effect of the article was to hold the plaintiff up to ridicule and render him ridiculous, and this being so, the plea that the article was merely a harmless joke, is not sustainable (Cook v. Ward, 6 Bing. 409).

It is, however, pleaded that the article is a fair comment on a matter of public interest. The phrase "Matter of public interest" in the law as to libel does not mean matter in which the public take an interest, a definition which would include the latest piece of scandal invented, nor acts done in a public place, but matters whereby the interests of the public or a considerable part of the public are or may be beneficially or injuriously affected. Hence the acts of public men (as e.g. Governors, etc.) are matters of public interest, if they are acts which concern persons as subjects of the realm (Dictum of Parke, B. in Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M and W. 108), i.e., are acts done in exercise of their legal official or public functions whereby the interests of the public may be affected. (Odgers v. Mortimer, 23 L.J. (N.S.) 472, Dictum of Bovill, C.J.) It may be that under some circumstances a Governor's dining privately with any particular person will become a matter of public interest, but we see no such circumstance in this case, and in any event in the present action the article could not we think be regarded as merely fair comment.

The fact that the defendant Company in the issue of the Sportsman's Argosy of the 22nd June, 1908, published a somewhat laudatory account of the plaintiff does not in our opinion rebut the presumption of malice in the legal sense arising from the publication in March, 1909 (i.e., 9 months later) of the article now complained of.

The several pleas having failed the plaintiff is entitled to judgment. The article does not in our opinion impute to him criminal, immoral or grossly improper conduct, but by holding him up to ridicule, tends to lessen him in the esteem of the world and to impair his enjoyment of social intercourse.

But although the libel in this case is not of the most aggravated type, a libel in a newspaper article is farther reaching in its effects than one published in a private document. Taking all the circumstances into consideration we assess the damages at $175.

We see no sufficient reason why this action like another of the same kind arising out of the same article might not have been tried by a single Judge and therefore under Ordinance 7 of 1893, section 56, no costs can be allowed.

RUSSELL, plaintiff.

ANDREW, defendant.

The portion of the abandoned Plantation Bushy Park, owned by the plaintiff, was, by the defendant's instructions, levied on under a writ of execution purporting by memorandum on its face to be a renewed writ, the said writ having been issued on the 14th December, 1906, on a judgment for $705 given in an action by the defendant against the plaintiff on a promissory note. The plaintiff alleges that the note was insufficiently stamped and was impounded by order of the Court when judgment was applied for, that an application for renewal of the writ of execution was not applied for till 18th September, 1908, and no order of the Court or a Judge granting leave to renew was ever given, that the judgment has been fully paid and satisfied, and that the defendant acted as his attorney from January, 1892 up to February 1893 (or as altered in his Reply, up to 1903) and never accounted and is largely indebted to him; and the plaintiff claims that the judgment be declared null and void, that the renewal of the writ be declared null and void and the levy thereunder be ordered to be withdrawn, that the defendant be ordered to enter satisfaction on the judgment, and that the defendant be also directed to account for his acts and intrusions as attorney, and to pay the plaintiff whatever may be found owing to him, on the account being taken.

The plaintiff's counsel after evidence was given abandoned the claim for entry of satisfaction on the judgment and did not press the claim for accounts, which in view of the evidence and of the plea of prescription raised by the defence, was manifestly untenable. The sole points for decision therefore are the validity of the judgment, and the legality of the so-called renewed writ and the levy thereunder.

The promissory note on which judgment was given was in our opinion insufficiently stamped. The provision in the Tax Ordinance, 1902, as to the stamping of promissory notes (Sect. 14) "of any kind whatsoever" for $10 or upwards, "for any of the sums above specified, twice the above rates" clearly refers to the sums and rates specified in the preceding part of the section in respect of Foreign Bills of Exchange other than those payable on demand or at sight, and this being so the promissory note being for $705 required a stamp of four shillings, but only a twelve cent stamp was put on it. But the insufficient stamping the promissory note did not destroy the defendant's right of action thereon, it only enabled an obstacle being placed in his way when trying to prove it (cf. Traviss v. Hargrave, 4 F. and F. 1078). It is not shown by the evidence before us either that the acting Judge who gave judgment held the stamp sufficient or how it came about that formal judgment was in this case signed by the acting Judge, notwithstanding the document was insufficiently stamped; but if an insufficiently stamped document is not rejected under section 29 of Ordinance 4 of 1888, although the Clerk of the Court may incur a penalty not exceeding $50 under section 30 of the same Ordinance still, in our opinion, a judgment given after admission of the document cannot be set aside on the ground that the stamp was insufficient (cf. Foss v. Wagner, 7 Ad. and E. 116, Doe d. Philip v. Benjamin, 9 Ad. and E. 644, and Bowler v. Williamson, 5 T.L.R. 382, in which last case though holding it was the duty of the County Court Judge to have rejected the document tendered, the Judges of the Queen's Bench Division on appeal dealt with the document as part of the evidence to be considered by them in arriving at a decision). The judgment, therefore, in the present case cannot be held null and void.

The writ under which the levy was made purports on its face to be a renewed writ, and not a fresh writ issued under O. xxxvi. R. 15, and the application made on the 18th September, 1908, by Mr. Andrew's Solicitor in the action "Andrew v. Russell" was (not for a new writ but) "for a renewal of the writ," &c., "issued against the above named defendant on the 18th December, 1906, for the sum of $705," &c. The application was not filed within the time for renewal specified in O. xxxvi, R. 18, nor was the renewal made by leave of the Court or a Judge as prescribed by that Rule. Under these circumstances, we think, both the so-called renewal and the levy made under the alleged renewed writ were legally unauthorized and void. We think that the so-called renewal was more than a mere irregularity, and is not within O. LI. (cf. Dictum of Herschell, L. C. in Smirhwaite v. Hannay, (1894), Ap. Cas. at p. 501, under the corresponding English Order of Court), and, that the plaintiff even if he could have done so (which we doubt) was not bound to apply under O. xxxvi, R. 27 to set it aside, instead of raising the question in this action.

The Court in view of the foregoing sets aside the so-called renewed writ and the levy thereunder, and orders that the defendant do pay the costs of the so-called renewal and levy, and a technical trespass having been committed by the levy made in pursuance of the defendant's instructions, awards the plaintiff $1 as nominal damages, but the Court dismisses the action so far as it claims an order setting aside the judgment, in the action "Andrew v. Russell" and an order for entry of satisfaction thereon and an order for accounts. Each party must bear his own costs.

KI-WONG, Plaintiff.

versus

KI-WONG, Defendant.

The plaintiff seeks to obtain a divorce from his wife on the ground of her adultery with one Theophilus Captain.

The parties are domiciled in this colony and were married here on the 25th September, 1900, in community of property.

The evidence establishes the alleged adultery, and no fact disentitling the plaintiff to the relief he seeks is shown.

The Court grants the divorce sought, and gives the plaintiff the custody of the two children of the marriage.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 25TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

SEEBACCUS, Appellant,

versus

SOOMAR, Respondent.

This is an appeal from one of the Stipendiary Magistrates of the Berbice Judicial District who gave judgment for the respondent as plaintiff for $24 96 (with costs) as damages and pecuniary compensation for illegal and wrongful conversion of certain bottles of milk, alleged to be plaintiff's property.

Counsel for the appellant appeared before me on the 14th June, 1909, to argue the appeal. There was no appearance either by or on behalf of respondent.

The only reason for appeal which was argued is that "the evidence established a mandate, the plaintiff's remedy being one of accounting, not on tort," and that, therefore, the Magistrate's decision is erroneous in point of law.

The evidence clearly shows that the appellant was the servant or agent of the respondent for the purpose of looking after two cows, the property of the respondent, during his absence from New Amsterdam. During respondent's absence the cows calved and plaintiff had them milked and sold the milk. I hold that he was not exceeding his authority as agent in so acting. Respondent himself says: "I found my cows had calved during my absence and I asked defendant for the milk money."

The action, therefore, should have been framed in contract, either express or implied, and not in tort, calling on the appellant to account for the money for the milk which rightly, and not tortiously, came into his possession.

The respondent mistook his remedy.

The appeal is allowed with costs, and order made that the respondent be non-suited on his claim.

THIS 29TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

versus

TANG-A-SICK.

This is an appeal from the Stipendiary Magistrate of the West Coast Judicial District.

The defendant keeps a shop at Uitvlugt and leading to the door thereof there is a bridge made of green-heart planks laid parallel to each other and to the front of the shop. The bridge is five feet wide and across the planks there are two strips of iron hoops laid at a distance of one foot from each edge of the bridge, and with a space of three feet in width between them. The iron hoops are affixed by nails to the surface of the bridge.

In January last, the plaintiff went to defendant's shop as a customer to buy goods and after purchasing she was leaving the shop by the bridge in question, when a little coolie girl was crossing the bridge to enter, and plaintiff and the girl passed each other on the bridge.

Whilst doing so plaintiff trod on the iron hoops and this cut her left foot which began to bleed. Plaintiff complained to defendant at the time and about five minutes after plaintiff had left, defendant came out of his shop and nailed down the iron hoops on the bridge.

Plaintiff sued the defendant for damages for negligence, and the Magistrate without calling on the defendant gave judgment for him holding that the mere happening of an accident is not in general prima facie evidence of negligence, and that the plaintiff must go further and show affirmative evidence. Plaintiff appeals from this judgment on the following ground (inter alia) that the Magistrate was wrong in holding that the plaintiff must lead affirmative evidence of negligence on the part of the defendant to enable her, the plaintiff, to succeed in her action.

It is laid down in Indermaur v. Dames L.R. 2 O.P. 311, that when one man comes on the premises of another for the purpose of transacting some business with him the law presumes a right on the part of the stranger to all reasonable and proper provision for his safety.

Neglect of such reasonable and proper provision for safety, amounts to negligence. The question to be decided is, whether on the above facts there is prima facie evidence of such neglect of duty on the part of defendant. I hold that there is such prima facie evidence of neglect.

The fact that the iron hoops were in such a condition that when the plaintiff trod upon it she received injury therefrom to her foot, and the further fact, that five minutes after the plaintiff had left, the defendant came out and nailed down the iron hoops on the bridge are sufficient prima facie proof of negligence on defendant's part. The injury was not the result of a mere accident, but assuming that plaintiff's evidence is not rebutted was the result of a neglect of duty on the part of the defendant. That being so, the plaintiff has made out a case for the defendant to answer. The appeal is, therefore, allowed with costs, and as the defendant's case was not heard, I refer the case back to the Magistrate, that he may call upon the defendant for his defence, and then give such judgment as justice and law require.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 26TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

SIMON A. DAVID

versus

JOSIAH JACKSON.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $315 96 amount of two promissory notes dated 15th and 21st January, 1903, respectively, made by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff and payable on demand.

The defendant admits making the promissory notes but says there was no consideration for them or either of them stating also that the plaintiff was his agent in Georgetown, from the beginning of 1906, until December, 1908, and as such agent from time to time received money and made payments on his account. Defendant further says that on the 15th January, 1909, the plaintiff falsely represented to him that on the balance of such receipt and payment, he the defendant owed plaintiff the sum of $305 96 and requested him to pay $100 in cash and to sign a promissory note for $205 96. The indebtedness is denied and a statement is made that in 1906 the defendant signed a bill of sale of the punts and certain other goods in favour of plaintiff, that there was no consideration for the bill of sale which defendant alleges is still in plaintiff's possession. The defendant also says that when he wanted the bill of sale cancelled plaintiff refused to do so unless the defendant paid $305 96, and that he the defendant was induced to sign two notes under false representation that the plaintiff was legally entitled to retain the punts and other goods. Defendant also says that on 15th January, 1909, he and plaintiff signed an agreement in writing, whereby the defendant promised to pay $305 96 to the plaintiff in consideration of a promise by plaintiff to deliver the punts and other goods to the defendant.

The defendant counter-claims.

1. Accounts of the plaintiff's intromissions as defendant agent, and payment of such sum as may be found due to defendant on the taking of such accounts. I do not believe the defence raised.

I have not the slightest doubt that the real transaction was that Jackson owed David a considerable amount for repairs done to his punts and that being afraid Bookers and deFreitas would levy gave what is called a bill of sale to David to secure his debt and to enable him to interplead should proceedings be taken. David and Jackson were good friends at the time. This bill of sale has mysteriously disappeared. Counsel for plaintiff says he handed it to the defendant.

Bookers being arranged with, there was no further trouble with them but deFreitas levied and David interpleaded, whether successfully or not is not clear, but money was borrowed by defendant from one Knoop to pay off deFreitas. That is Knoop gave promissory notes which were subsequently paid.

The punts, oxen, &c., were always in the possession of Jackson, who carried on his woodcutting business and hired his punts to neighbouring woodcutters. This hire was sometimes received by Jackson himself and sometimes by David, who clearly either sent the amount up to Jackson or purchased goods for him and paid orders. This is shown by the letter of 17th November, 1908.

A time came when Jackson wanted the bill of sale cancelled as he desired to raise money on the chattels and after an interview between the parties at Mr. McArthur's office, David's account against Jackson was made up and a document was prepared and signed by Jackson, to the effect that David sold the punts, &c., to Jackson, at the value stated in the schedule, the receipt of this amount being acknowledged except as to $305 96, David's account, for which a promissory note for $205 96 was to be given together with $100 in cash. The bill of sale would naturally be returned at this settlement. The promissory note was duly drawn up and signed, but Jackson not getting as great a loan as he desired did not pay in $100 as stipulated. Another note was therefore made for $110 which included $10 for Mr. McArthur's fee. It is on these notes that the action is brought. It is not an action to recover the chattels.

That there was consideration for the promissory notes, I have no doubt, and the defence fails. I have also no doubt the defendant owed the amount for which he gave the promissory notes.

I give judgment for the plaintiff with costs. I dismiss the counter-claim with costs.

8. In the event of the Government finding it necessary or expedient to do so, they shall have the right to terminate this Contract by giving three months' previous notice in writing to the Contractors of such their intention in which case this Contract shall ipso facto cease and determine and be null and void, and the Government shall thereupon purchase from the Contractors and the Contractors shall sell to the Government, the price or purchase money of which shall be fixed under the provisions of Clause 23 of the Original Contract the Blocks of land hereinbefore referred to and marked "C" and "D" on the said diagram also hereinbefore referred to and the stellings at the upper and lower termini of the said road constructed on the said land marked "C" and all such buildings and erections thereto as have been erected for the purposes of carrying on this Contract, the Contractors being allowed four months from the date of transporting of the said land marked "C" and "D" in which to remove all other their buildings thereon; but it is expressly agreed between the Contractors and the Government that in case this Contract is determined by the Government in the manner herein immediately provided for the Contractors though having sold shall continue to have the right to occupy and use during the currency of the original Contract, or any renewal thereof, free of charge and subject to like regulations already hereinbefore referred to the stellings at the lower terminus of the said road; and shall also have the like right to use during the currency of the original Contract, or any renewal thereof, for the purposes of the said original Contract such portion of the land adjacent to the said stellings as was owned and occupied by the said Contractors for the purposes aforesaid prior to the date of this agreement and to erect on such land such cargo sheds for storing goods in transit as may be from time to time permitted by the Governor provided that no such user shall give the Contractors power to occupy any portion of the said road; and the Contractors shall have the right to select a piece of Crown or Colony land of not more than one Rhymland Acre in extent at the upper terminus of the said road adjacent to the hereinbefore mentioned land marked "C" with a right of way from the upper terminus of the said land marked "C" to the said piece of Crown or Colony land.

9. This Contract shall be given effect to by an Ordinance to be introduced by the Government for that purpose subject to the consent of the Court of Policy.

THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS ORDINANCE, 1868, AMENDMENT BILL, 1909.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this bill is to make certain necessary amendments in the Registration of Births and Deaths Ordinance, 1868, (No. 1 of 1868.) Clause 1 is to obviate a difficulty which a decision of the Supreme Court in a recent case has shown to exist. By section 7 of the Summary Conviction Offences (Procedure) Ordinance, 1893, (No. 12 of 1893), no proceedings can be taken for any summary conviction offence after the expiration of six months from its commission, and in the case referred to the Court held that this rule applies to the offence of not reporting a birth or death, under the first named Ordinance. As the authorities cannot always find out at once when a birth or death has occurred without being reported, and as no penalty can be inflicted if such birth or death can be concealed for six months, not a difficult matter in some parts of the Colony, especially in the case of births, difficulties may easily occur in enforcing the registration law. In the case of ordinary summary conviction offences, such as assaults, stealing and the like, there is no hardship in requiring them to be prosecuted within six months, as the persons wronged know at once that the offence has been committed, but in the case of offences against the registration law, it may easily happen and has happened, that the persons whose duty it is to prosecute, do not hear of them till it is too late to proceed. It is therefore proposed that the rule requiring proceedings to be taken within six months shall not apply to the offences in question.

Clauses 2 and 3 (1) merely amend the Registration Ordinance by requiring notice to be published of the names and addresses of Registrars within their Registration Districts, instead of in Parishes, Parishes as an administrative area having been abolished by Ordinance No. 11 of 1904, s. 4.

Clause 3 (2) and (3) give effect to the resolution of the Combined Court passed at the last Annual Session (February, 1909), whereby the cost of the registration of births and deaths for the whole Colony is to be borne by the general revenue, thus relieving the Town Councils of Georgetown and New Amsterdam of the cost of such registration in those towns. The clause repeals those parts of the Ordinance (part of section 58 and section 59) which require the Town Councils named to bear this cost.

"ANCE, 1868."

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 30TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

DAVSON & CO., LTD., Plaintiffs,

versus

The Proprietor or Proprietors of part of the South back quarter of Lot 11, New Amsterdam, Defendants.

This is an action in rem to enforce a mortgage on part of the south back quarter of lot 11, New Amsterdam, passed on the 13th December, 1866, by Mary Ann Ross, assisted by her husband William Ross, in favour of one Simon Francis, to secure a sum of $600 with interest thereon at the rate of 15% per annum, which mortgage was on the 3rd September, 1868, transferred to Henry Katz Davson, trading as S. Davson & Co., and was subsequently on the 14th June, 1898, transferred by him trading as aforesaid to the plaintiff company.

It appears from the evidence that no money has ever been paid on account of the principal or interest of this mortgage, possibly, though the evidence does not establish this, because there was a running account between the firm and W. Ross; and the first question for decision is whether this action is not barred by prescription. Hypothecary actions, such as this, if no part of the principal or interest is paid, are, as a rule, barred by the lapse of 40 years undisturbed possession of the mortgaged property by the mortgagee and his heirs (Grotius II. 48. 44. Van der Keessel, Thes. 443.)

In this case the evidence, we think, shows that the mortgagor and her heirs have been continuously in undisturbed possession, hence the prescription period is the one just mentioned and not the shorter period of 30 years, which would probably be sufficient if the property had been in possession of a stranger (Grotius II. 48. 44). As more than 40 years have elapsed since the mortgage was passed and since the date fixed thereby for repayment of the capital sum thereby secured, prima facie, as no part of the principal or interest has been paid, this action is barred.

It is, however, urged that prescription does not operate in this case as the mortgagee's rights have been acknowledged by the mortgagor (a) in conversations with the mortgagee or his representatives; (b) by an agreement in writing of the 21st July, 1876, between the said M. A. Ross, assisted by her husband the said W. Ross and the said H. K. Davson, trading as aforesaid; and (c) by fire insurance policies being in 1890, 1902 and 1907, transferred to the mortgagee as collateral security for the mortgage. Even if a mere acknowledgment is sufficient to prevent the operation of prescription, there is not any evidence of any conversation in which such acknowledgment was given; nor, in our opinion, can the agreement of the 21st July, 1876, be construed as an acknowledgment of the continuing existence of the mortgage on the 13th December, 1866, that agreement not mentioning the mortgage but merely purporting to grant a lien on certain property therein specified, the mortgaged south back quarter of lot 11 not being included, and providing for M. A. Ross passing a mortgage on the specified property whenever called on to do so.

It is contended that the payment of interest or part of the capital sum secured is the only circumstance by which prescription can be prevented; and it is pointed out that this is the only circumstance mentioned by well-known writers on Roman-Dutch law as having this effect. On the other hand, a passage in Maa-dorp's Institutes of Cape Law (Vol II. p. 292, 1st ed.) has been cited to show that any acknowledgment of the mortgage is sufficient. In the absence of any other authority we should not be prepared to act on the dictum of this text book. But none of the Roman-Dutch authorities quoted professes to give an exhaustive list of the circumstances which prevent prescription in cases like the present, and in the absence of any express provision of the Roman-Dutch law on the point the Court must have recourse to the "written" or Roman law (Resolution of their H. M. the States General, 4 Oct., 1774, Van der Linden p. 53, Van der Kees, Thes. 17) in which originated the 40 year period of prescription already mentioned. This period was introduced by Justinian for cases in which the mortgagor and his heir remained in possession of the mortgaged property "ne possessores ejusmodi prope immortalit timore teneantur," prescription in such cases not having previously been allowed to have any effect, and in the same law (Code VII. 39.7) it is expressly provided that if a debtor gives his creditor a second security for his debt, this interrupts the running of the prescription period and renews the first hypothec. It is, we think, clear from the notices given to the Insurance Companies that fire insurance policies were in 1890 and 1902 (i.e. before prescription had taken effect) transferred by the mortgagor's representative to Davson & Co. and S. Davson & Co., Ltd., respectively, as collateral security for a first mortgage on the same property. The only mortgage then existing was the one now in question, and we think the giving of collateral security had the effect of preventing prescription. The present action therefore is not barred.

The evidence before the Court does not show the circumstances under which the loan was originally obtained and the Court is not prepared to hold that interest at 15 per cent. per annum on a loan obtained in 1866 under circumstances unknown to it, is necessarily excessive, and therefore should under Ordinance 7 of 1893, section 35 be reduced. But on the authorities cited (Voet XXII. 1. 19. Van der Keessel Thes. 549 cf. Niekerk v. Niekerk 1 Monb. 452 and Roberts v. Booy, 4 E. D. C. 22) no sum greater than the principal can be claimed on account of unpaid interest.

In view of the special circumstances the plaintiff being only in part successful and his costs not having been materially increased by the appearance of the defendant who we think was entitled to appear, each party should, we think, bear his own costs; but the plaintiff is, we think, entitled to add the amount of his taxed costs to the amount recoverable in respect of principal and interest under the mortgage. The action was, we think, properly brought in the General Jurisdiction. Judgment is therefore given for the plaintiff for the recovery under the mortgage of $1,200 and costs, and the defendant must pay his own costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 30TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

versus

FLEMING.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $1,500 as special and $1,000 as general damages from the defendant for falsely and maliciously writing and publishing of the plaintiff in the way of his calling of a planter and agriculturist, a letter on or about 28th November, 1908, to the Immigration Agent General as set out in the pleadings in which the defendant stated that in consequence of a letter received, he, the defendant, taxed the plaintiff with cohabiting with one Ramkalia, a coolie woman, that the plaintiff admitted the visits but denied the further accusation, stating he was incapable of having sexual intercourse in consequence of disease. The defendant wrote that he warned the plaintiff that if he heard of a repetition it would mean dismissal, that plaintiff promised there should be no further cause of complaint. Defendant continued: "Notwithstanding this, some time afterwards, I had precise information that the woman had again been to his room at night. Plaintiff acknowledged such was the case and was dismissed. I had previously impressed upon him that undue intimacy with the same woman had cost Mr. Wale his situation and told him what to expect if he offended in like manner. The evidence against him satisfied me as to his guilt, and I should have failed in my duty had I not taken the step I did."

In consequence of this letter, the plaintiff was dismissed on or about the 18th December, 1908, from his employment at Plantation Non Pareil.

The defence is a categorical denial of all the allegations, and a plea that the words and statements, if made, are true in substance and in fact, giving particulars that the defendant on three several occasions in the month of November, 1907, received anonymous letters stating that the plaintiff, who was then an overseer, was cohabiting with the coolie woman Ramkalia, that all or some of them were handed to the plaintiff for his comments thereon, and were not returned, that the plaintiff in the said month of November, admitted she had visited him but saying he was suffering from venereal disease.

That on or about 24th November, 1907, defendant received information of Doman, the watchman, that Ramkalia had again been to plaintiff on the then preceding night, and on the plaintiff acknowledging the visit he was discharged. The defendant further alleged that the plaintiff had since 30th July, 1907, up to the day of his discharge been visited by and had sexual intercourse with Ramkalia at least two days in every week. Defendant further said that one Richard Campbell, a porter baas at Plantation Providence, informed him that while plaintiff was an overseer on that estate (a section of Plantation Diamond), he the said Richard Campbell, assisted the plaintiff and Ramkalia in bringing about such cohabitation. Defendant admits writing or publishing the letter, but says that the words were published on a privileged occasion and were without malice.

From the evidence both oral and documentary, it is clear that the defendant when he dismissed the plaintiff on 27th November, 1907, believed that there were immoral relations between plaintiff and Ramkalia, although he certainly did not make any very careful investigation such as he ought to have done considering that the plaintiff was discharged because the woman went to his quarters at a time when from the medical evidence it was impossible for plaintiff to have sexual intercourse with her.

The porter baas Campbell is dead, and I certainly do not believe the evidence of the witnesses who were called to prove intercourse between plaintiff and Ramkalia, at Plantation Providence, while plaintiff was at Plantation Diamond, and up to a short time before his dismissal the woman was living with another overseer.

After his discharge from Diamond, the plaintiff did not attempt to get employment on a sugar estate, but did get other work which however he did not retain.

While at Diamond the plaintiff was engaged in what is called mechanical tillage. In October, 1908, hearing of a vacancy in this particular work he applied to Mr. Duncan, and obtained the appointment. A year had thus almost elapsed from the time of his dismissal, and it is quite possible that the plaintiff imagined the affair had blown over especially as an overseer dismissed for the same cause working at another estate.

It was this employment by Mr. Duncan which has led to this action for when the defendant was informed that the plaintiff was employed at Non Pareil he at once telephoned to the Immigration Agent General making a complaint that he thought it unfair Mr. Duncan should be permitted to act as he had done, that is, to employ the plaintiff without the necessary certificate while he the defendant was endeavouring to comply with the wishes of the Government as set out in circulars issued to Managers and Attorneys. In one of these circulars the desirability of obtaining a certificate of ability and conduct is pointed out when an overseer from any other estate is employed and in another circular it is intimated that rigorous action will be taken to obtain the dismissal of any overseer found guilty of improper relations with female East Indians immigrants. These circulars are addressed to employers but no duty is imposed on an employer to report a dismissal.

The telephone message could only bear one interpretation, namely, that plaintiff had been dismissed for immoral relations with an East Indian female immigrant.

This case has arisen from the interpretation put on the circulars by Mr. Duncan who read the term overseer to mean only such as had the overlooking of female East Indians not considering there was any necessity to obtain a certificate in the case of a person not having such overlooking. In mechanical tillage only men and boys are employed.

This view was apparently not that of the defendant.

After receiving the telephone message referred to, the Immigration Agent General wrote to the defendant asking for particulars, stating that plaintiff courted inquiry. The reply given is the subject of this action, the argument being that it is not privileged because the defendant volunteered the information in the first instance. I do not think the letter was privileged as it was the outcome of a volunteered statement.

The Government, although it would appear as if at first inclined to adopt Mr. Duncan's interpretation, eventually disagreed with it and the plaintiff was dismissed.

It was also argued that the defendant was averse to another estate getting the knowledge of mechanical tillage acquired by the plaintiff, placed at their disposal and that this was the reason of his action.

The primary cause of the step he took in telephoning, was, I have no doubt, annoyance at Mr. Duncan being permitted to employ an overseer discharged as plaintiff had been discharged, the fact that plaintiff's knowledge of mechanical tillage was a cause is strenuously denied and there is no evidence to prove otherwise. There was no direct malice against the plaintiff, but in a legal sense this would be presumed as defendant knew what would be the result of the information he gave, that is the dismissal of the plaintiff.

The defendant admitted in his evidence that in his letter to the Immigration Agent General, the sequence of events was not correct, this is material as it affects the time of the warnings referred to and the promise to give no further cause of complaint.

I certainly think defendant should have made a further and fuller inquiry on 27th November, 1907, the date of the dismissal from Diamond, and should also have consented to the enquiry after he had telephoned to the Immigration authorities placing all the evidence he had at their disposal.

In November, 1907, seeing that the plaintiff accepted his dismissal although the charge against him was not proved defendant was no doubt justified in taking no further steps at that time. He thought the matter was ended.

I am not satisfied, however, that there were any immoral relations between the plaintiff and Ramkalia, the evidence adduced at the hearing before me is most unreliable, the plea of truth is therefore not sustained.

Whatever belief the defendant had on November, 1907, he was not, in my opinion, justified in the step he took a year later when he volunteered his information to the Immigration Agent General, the fact that so much evidence of an unreliable nature was given tends to confirm the impression that the action on 27th November, 1907, was a hasty one.

The plaintiff by the defendant's action has lost some three month's employment at $2 a day and board. This I assess at $240, I also award $240 general damages or $480 in all and costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

J. P. SANTOS & Co.

versus

A. W. DOS SANTOS.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $260 on a promissory note.

The defendant admits the making of the note but pleads payment.

It is purely a question of evidence.

The defendant deals with the plaintiff and has given several promissory notes which on being paid have been invariably returned to him. This particular note was to settle for shop goods and a mortgage account and I am inclined to think that there was some dispute on account of it. There certainly were more notes running and defendant occasionally renewed.

There is no suggestion of any keeping back payments but it was suggested that the money paid was put on a table and was then uplifted by some one.

The clerk alleged to have received the amount absolutely denies having done so and I see no reason to doubt his evidence or that of the other witnesses for plaintiffs.

I cannot believe a man like the defendant would have paid the money without getting back his promissory note.

I give judgment for the plaintiffs for $260 with costs

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

J. E. GODFREY

versus

"THE ARGOSY" COMPANY, LIMITED, AND JAMES ROBERTSON BURNETT.

The plaintiff who is Surgeon General of the colony of British Guiana claims the sum of $2,500 for an alleged libel contained in "The Sportman Argosy" newspaper of the 15th March, 1909, the first named defendants being the proprietors of the said newspaper and the second defendant being the printer and publisher of it.

The libel complained of is said to be contained in an account of a dinner given by Mr. Wood Davis to His Excellency Sir Frederic Mitchell Hodgson, Governor of this colony, at which the plaintiff was present. The article is set out in full in the speeches said to have been made and it is alleged that the defendants falsely and maliciously published the article and meant that the plaintiff on the occasion of the said dinner acted as Master of Ceremonies or Private Secretary to the said John Wood Davis and that to be present was an honour conferred on the plaintiff and also that the plaintiff had consented to and allowed the said John Wood Davis to use his influence as a member of the Combined Court with the Governor and members of the said Court to increase the pay or emoluments of office of him the plaintiff as such Surgeon General.

2. That the defendants also intended and meant that the plaintiff and John Wood Davis had together sought to bring about an increase of the salary of the Governor, and that although they failed in their efforts to do so, that the Governor would recognize their services and recompense them accordingly.

3. That the defendants also intended that the plaintiff and the Governor were so ashamed of its being known that they were the guests of John Wood Davis that they and the other guests left the Tower Hotel secretly.

The defendants admit no speeches were made or any songs sung at the dinner, they deny the ironical, false and malicious printing and publication, they allege that neither the article nor any portions thereof nor any words therein mean, means or mean what the plaintiff alleges they mean, and that they are incapable of any defamatory meaning; that the words are printed and published the words of business as public journal-malice or animus injuriandi merely and that it was on the face of it as it was imaginary and apocryphal account at the dinner, that the article is a libel in good faith and without malice and on a matter of public interest.

Wood Davis had invited His Excellency to dine with him and that the plaintiff had accepted the said invitation and had encouraged His Excellency to accept the said invitation with the said J. Wood Davis whose conduct was insufficient to warrant the plaintiff to invite the Governor to dine with him.

The plaintiff had accepted the said invitation and had encouraged His Excellency to accept the said invitation with the said J. Wood Davis whose conduct was insufficient to warrant the plaintiff to invite the Governor to dine with him.

There is no doubt that anyone reading the article in question would not take it to be a veracious account of what took place at the dinner, but it is obvious that even if published as a joke it exceeded the bounds of fair comment when it held out that the plaintiff had acted as Master of Ceremonies at a ridiculous function such as is portrayed. I do not think that any ordinary person would construe the article as saying that the plaintiff had allowed J. Wood Davis to use his influence at the Combined Court to obtain for himself an increase of salary, especially as it was well known that the plaintiff was not in the colony when the movement was initiated as well as the fact that the Hon. A. B. Brown was the prime mover in retaining the services of the plaintiff.

The words "Mr. Wood Davis disinterested kindness to people in high places" certainly does not impute corrupt actions.

The third innuendo that the guests were ashamed of being present is proved to the extent that they are said to have used the back door on going and returning. Adopting the law as laid down in another case before the Full Court I find that the article exceeded the bounds of fair comment even as a joke.

At the hearing it was admitted that the defendants had no ground for attacking the plaintiff therefore the holding him up to ridicule as they did was unjustified. Indeed it is this holding up to ridicule which was what plaintiff in the first instance complained of and which impaired his enjoyment of the society of his friends.

The fact that a laudatory article was published of the plaintiff some time before does not rebut the presumption of malice in the legal sense arising from the publication of the article complained of, although it may be considered when dealing with the damages.

It was also admitted and is borne out by the reply to plaintiff's letter for an apology that such apology would have been made had there not been another action pending.

This being so I think the plaintiff is entitled to some damages although he has not been or cannot be affected by the article except so far as ridicule is concerned.

I award $120 and costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 30TH DAY OF JUNE, 1909.

M. P. CAMACHO, Appellant

S. MOORE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of a Magistrate who awarded the sum of $20 and $5 76 costs as damages for the giving the respondent's daughter into the custody of a policeman upon a false charge of stealing a mat.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. The decision is erroneous in point of law inasmuch as

(a) There was evidence before the Magistrate's Court that the defendant reasonably and honestly believed that the mat found in possession of the plaintiff's daughter belonged to him

(b) There was evidence that the defendant had reasonable and probable cause for believing the mat in question was his property

(c) There was reasonable and probable cause for the defendant giving the plaintiff's daughter in the custody of the police.

(d) The defendant if liable at all was not liable for damages for false imprisonment

(e) The decision was altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not be sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

The defence in the Court below was that there was reasonable and probable cause.

The facts are that the plaintiff, who is Mr. Nunan's groom, had a mat presented to him by his employer and sent his daughter home with it. On her way she called at appellant's house, he is the owner of the premises rented by Mr. Nunan.

The appellant had at one time a carriage at the house and a mat was in it. One similar to that the girl had of which kind, according to the evidence, there are numbers in the colony.

The appellant asked the girl where she got it and she truthfully said from her father who worked with Mr. Nunan as groom.

The girl was questioned as to where her father got the mat and the appellant gave her into custody and she was taken to the Police Station.

Later on appellant made enquires and found his carriage was at Albert Town and his mat was found in a cab driven by a man who, on instruction presumably from appellant, had removed the carriage and mat some time the month before.

The reasons of appeal are all in reality that there was real and probable cause. There is no special form of plaint in the Magistrates Courts and the facts were plainly set out in the claim for damages (rule 16 Magistrate's Court.)

The Magistrate acting as Judge held there was an absence of reasonable and probable cause, and I think the view he took of the case was correct.

The appeal is dismiss, with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

J. S. BUIE, Appellant,

versus

J. H. GOMES & Co., Respondents.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who gave judgment for $80 32 and dismissed the counter-claim of $75 00.

As the Magistrate rightly held, the defendant admitted the debt by the terms of the counter-claim and it was therefore only necessary of him to decide the latter.

The reasons of appeal are somewhat voluminous.

Reasons 1 (a). Because in the absence of proof, of which there was none, the defendant, the said J. S. Buie, could not have been held to have been indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $80 32, which she denies owing, is not maintainable as the defendant by her solicitor stated she was willing to set this amount off and unquestionably admitted owing it.

Reason (b) is: Because the Court having decided upon the evidence and not on the law submitted, the only evidence given was that the original promissory note in question was not given to the plaintiff, the said J. H. Gomes & Co. for the purpose of reducing the liability of the defendant's husband but in part payment of the defendant's debt to the plaintiffs.

A question was raised as to some notes, the signature of one of the parties to the first note was said to be a forgery and the appellant was afraid that her husband would get into trouble—he apparently did all her business, a witness for appellant, a signatory to the second note, said “Mrs. Buie was anxious to get the note torn up as by the rumours she had heard. Mrs. Buie never denied her liability on the first note.”

The second note was credited to her husband's account and it is on this note that the $155 were paid. One note was signed on 17th December, 1908, whereas the credit of cash of $360 50 was given on 1st December, 1908, on Mrs. Buie's own order for her own indebtedness.

Reason (c) is: Because the only lawful consideration proved by the evidence is that for the original note only, which was also by the evidence was proved to have been paid and discharged.

The evidence shows that the second note was signed by the appellant in lieu of the other one regarding which there was a dispute as to the signature that is a note given for the same amount which was destroyed, when the new note was given. The appellant says it was signed by my husband as my attorney in part payment of an account dated 14th or 17th November, 1908,—three months to run. “The second note is dated 17th December, 1908, and was payable on 6th January, 1909. The consideration for it was clearly a subsisting debt of a third party, that is appellant's husband (Byles on Bills p. 152.)

Reason (d). Because there was no evidence on which the Court could find the sale of defendant's property had nothing to do with the retirement of the note is met by the order of 1st December, 1908, in which no mention of the note is made, the payment being “on account of my indebtedness to them.”

As to reason (e) that it was proved by the evidence that the said sum of $115 52 was paid by the defendant's brother against her direction, it is a pure question as to the belief of the Magistrate and the evidence of the witness Thompson. “It was agreed that M. C. Gomes to pay the $115 52 he owed her to J. H. Gomes & Co. on account of the note” justified the Magistrate in holding this amount was so paid.

Reason 2 is the usual general one which is not sustainable.

I think the Magistrate was right in his decision and I dismiss the appeal with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

THIS 8TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

GORDON, Appellant,
versus

CUMMINGS, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Stipendiary Magistrate, Georgetown, dismissing a complaint for making use of insulting language, whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned.

The Magistrate states he dismissed the complaint, no evidence having been given that a breach of the peace may be occasioned.

The reason for appeal is that the decision is erroneous in law (a) it being unnecessary to give evidence that a breach of the peace may be occasioned; (b) whether a breach of the peace may be occasioned being an inference to be drawn from all the circumstances and not a matter of specific proof; and (c) if evidence was necessary, such evidence having been given by the appellant and her witnesses.

I agree with counsel for the appellant, that whether a breach of the peace may be occasioned is a matter to be inferred from all the circumstances proved, and not one to be proved by special evidence. But the facts that insulting words have been used, that the parties are near each other, and that there was a physical possibility of a breach of the peace, do not, in my opinion, necessarily show that a breach of the peace may be occasioned. In the present case the evidence does not show that the appellant said or did anything indicating that she was tempted by the words spoken to commit a breach of the peace, and the respondent, directly he had spoken, appears to have been told by a constable to go away, and to have done so. I see no sufficient reason for disturbing the Magistrate's decision, and the appeal is dismissed, but without costs, there having been no appearance by or on behalf of the respondent.

OW-KING, appellant,
WONG, respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Stipendiary Magistrate, Georgetown, on a charge brought against the appellant of unlawfully having in his possession $31.09 in silver and copper coin, three pairs of drawers and seven cigarette tubes, reasonably suspected of having been unlawfully obtained.

The Magistrate convicted the appellant so far as the money and cigarette tubes are concerned, but held that there was no reasonable suspicion of the drawers having been unlawfully obtained.

Reasons of appeal 1, 3 and 4 were not insisted on and were practically abandoned at the hearing, Reason 1 being too vague and general, Reason 3 being in view of Moses Chin's evidence, unsustainable, and Reason 4 mentioning not the Ledger but the Clerk's Belongings Book which was undoubtedly admitted in evidence.

The several grounds stated under Reason 2, for contending that the Magistrate's decision is erroneous in law, are in substance and effect, reducible to two, viz., that if the suspicion that the drawers were unlawfully obtained was unreasonable, the suspicion was equally unreasonable as to all the articles, and that the facts were consistent with the appellant's innocence and therefore he should not have been convicted.

It appears from the evidence that the appellant was clerk for some weeks at respondent's shop at Omai, and acted during part of each day as cashier, if dishonest he could as clerk obtain money and cigarette tubes from the shop without being observed and that while he was clerk the cash was sometimes short and sometimes in excess, the maximum shortage being $2. The drawers mentioned in the charge were entered in the Book in which all the belongings of persons going up to work at Omai (even small articles, like tooth brushes) are stated, but the cigarette tubes were not entered, nor is it probable as many as seven cigarette tubes would have been taken up to Omai, by any man working there while three pair of drawers might well have been. Hence the Magistrate was not bound on the evidence to arrive at the same conclusion as to the drawers and the cigarette tubes. The sum of $31.09 was found on the prisoner when searched on arrival in Georgetown on the steamer from Wismar, and was then, according to Sgt.-Major Mercurius, stated by him to be in part his wages and in part money he had taken into the bush, but (according to S. Seon) when leaving Omai the appellant was asked how much money he had, and never mentioned any save $1.65 and a cash order for $2; the $1.65 being the amount paid him to bring him down. It is not probable the appellant would have taken into the bush such a large sum as the difference between $31 09 and $1 65, much less $31 as urged in his defence.

In view of the foregoing and other parts of the evidence, I am not prepared to hold that the Magistrate's decision is erroneous in law, or that all the facts were reasonably consistent with the appellant being innocent, and that therefore he should have been acquitted.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

HENRY A. BOVELL, C.J.

ACKLA, Appellant,
versus

PETERS (Sgt. of Police), Respondent.

This is an appeal from a conviction of unlawfully having in possession spirits, to wit, rum, exceeding in quantity a reputed pint.

The first reason for appeal, viz., that illegal evidence had been admitted, without which the decision would be unsustainable, was not argued, the Court holding, on objection taken, that the reason was insufficient, as it did not state what was relied on as rendering illegal the admission of the evidence specified (cf. Lewis v. Wharton, 19th December, 1902).

The other reasons of appeal are that the decision is erroneous in law, (a) because the rum being ordinary shop rum and sold to the appellant from a retail spirit shop, and being less than a quart, the case was brought within exception (c) of sect. 93 (2) of Ord. 1 of 1905; and (b) because there is no legal definition of the term “reputed pint” as used in the said section 93, and the evidence was insufficient to show that the appellant had more than a reputed pint of rum in his possession.

The rum in question, according to the Commissary's evidence, was ordinary shop rum and did not exceed the quantity, viz., a standard quart, which under section 17 of Ordinance 8 of 1868 a retail spirit shop-keeper can legally sell to a customer at one time. Not only the appellant, but also the manager of Tranquado and Gomes's shop, gave evidence that it had been purchased on one occasion at the shop. The Magistrate does not express any disbelief of this evidence, but says the defendant "has not attempted such proof" as brings him within the exception. The exception is, if "such spirits have been legally sold, delivered or disposed of" to the possessor "under the Wine, &c., Licences Ordinance, 1868," &c., and if such spirits have been obtained in separate quarts from any retailer at separate times and not under a permit the purchaser has obtained a receipt in writing for the purchase money paid for the same and showing the quantity of spirits for which and the time when it was paid." The only one of the circumstances mentioned in the exception which the appellant has not attempted to prove is that a written receipt was given for the purchase money, but the Magistrate appears, from the wording of the reason for his decision, to have overlooked the provision which requires such receipt, only if the spirits have been obtained in separate quarts. There is no indication that it was the intention of the Legislature to require a written receipt to be obtained whenever a customer purchases a single quart of rum from a retailer, and the provision as worded imposes an obligation on a purchaser who is content to purchase and keep only one quart at a time. I think, therefore, the appeal must be allowed.

Also, the evidence is not, in my opinion, sufficient to fix the meaning of the term "reputed pint" as used in the Spirits Ordinance, 1905. The Customs Duties Ordinance, 1907, Schedule I, has been referred to but that schedule contains no definition of what is a reputed pint, but merely provides as to bottles (i.e., a bottle shown to be a bottle) shall be taken to contain a reputed pint. This provision cannot, in my opinion, be regarded as a definition of the quantity term "reputed pint" in the Spirits Ordinance, 1905. The Commissary, in his evidence, says the rum in appellant's possession was more than two reputed pints, but he stated "there is no fixed quantity as to what a reputed pint is. But it is a quantity of 1 of 1907, first schedule, at 1/2 of a gallon levying Customs Duties." This shows that except the provision that bottles reputed pint bottles shall for the levying Customs duties be deemed to contain a reputed pint is not of itself a quantity. In the absence of a statutory definition of the term "reputed pint" it is difficult to say what quantity of spirits is intended by section 93 of the Spirits Ordinance, 1905. Evidence in this case is clearly such as to justify my conclusion as to whether or not the quantity intended by the appellant exceeds the quantity intended by the Legislature. The reasons put forward, the appeal must, in my opinion, be allowed with costs.

THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE LAND SURVEYORS ORDINANCE, 1891, AMENDMENT BILL, 1909.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to enable persons who have obtained certificates in land surveying outside the Colony to be admitted as land surveyors in this Colony. Under the Land Surveyors Ordinance, 1891, (No. 20 of 1891) as it stands at present, no one can be admitted as a land surveyor on a certificate obtained outside the Colony, unless that certificate has been obtained not only after passing an examination, but after passing an examination in some place in His Majesty's Dominions where passing an examination is required before a person can be allowed to practise as a land surveyor. Therefore though a person may have passed an examination in land surveying in a place where no examination is required before being allowed to practise as a land surveyor, as in England, yet that examination, however stringent, could not be accepted here.

The Bill enables certificates granted after an examination passed anywhere in His Majesty's Dominions, or even certificates granted without examination, to be accepted if the Board of Examiners is satisfied that such certificates are sufficient guarantee of competence.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE LAND SURVEYORS ORDINANCE, 1891."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

1. Sub-section one of section four of the Land Surveyors Ordinance, 1891, is hereby repealed and the following sub-section shall be deemed to be inserted in the said Ordinance in lieu thereof :—

Amendment of Ordinance 20 of 1891,
section 4.

(1.) 2. This Ordinance may be cited as the Land Surveyors Ordinance, 1891, Amendment Ordinance, 1909.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 8TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

T. SHERVINGTON, Appellant,

versus

A. F. D'ANDRADE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District, who gave judgment for the plaintiff on a claim for $20 and costs, including costs of two witnesses, 60 cents, two and a half months' rents of a cook shop, situated at lot 7, Newtown District, Georgetown.

The reasons for appeal are:

The decision is erroneous in point of law, because—
(a) The plaintiff failed to establish, at the hearing, the Magistrate's jurisdiction to hear and determine the said action.

(b) The learned Magistrate was in error in holding that, as it was proved that lot 7, Newtown, was within the Georgetown Judicial District, he thereby had jurisdiction.

(c) The learned Magistrate erroneously concluded that the said lot 7, Newtown, was the subject matter of the action, and that thereby he had jurisdiction. In his decision the learned Magistrate says: "Mr. Woolford said that plaintiff has failed to prove that the contract alleged has not been proved to be made in Georgetown, in Georgetown Judicial District. I hold that jurisdiction has been sufficiently established, as I find it proved that the thing, which is the subject matter of the action, viz., lot 7, Newtown, the cook shop, is within the Georgetown Judicial District."

Further on in the decision the Magistrate, on the evidence, found, for the plaintiff, and particularly on plaintiff's own evidence, that defendant became the tenant of plaintiff of the premises in question, from May 11, 1908, inclusive, and remained such tenant until July 26, 1908, i.e., 2½ months.

It was submitted that, on the evidence, nothing more than suretyship on the part of the defendant was proved, and that the defendant could not be made liable as such on the claim and evidence.

The learned Magistrate was wrong in holding that because lot 7, Newtown, is in the Georgetown Judicial District he had jurisdiction. Indeed, when an objection was raised as to proof of ownership by the plaintiff's evidence, the Magistrate overruled the objection because no bona fide question of title had been set up, saying, if the latter had to be proved, his jurisdiction would be ousted and he could not deal with any ordinary claim for rent.

As a matter of fact, lot 7, Newtown, was not the subject matter of the action, it was the rent of it that was in dispute.

The evidence certainly tended to show that the defendant was only responsible for the rent for one Mrs. Surrey, and there was no proof that jurisdiction was conferred on the Magistrate, as defined in section 3(4) of 11 of 1893. The plaintiff, it is true, states that the defendant resided in Georgetown, but no proof was given of this fact.

The Magistrate was wrong in giving judgment as he did.

I reverse the decision with costs.

23rd July, 1909.

THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE MAGISTRATES' COURTS (PAYMENT OF FEES) BILL, 1909.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

At present, when any Government Department has to take legal proceedings, fees have to be paid in exactly the same manner as by a private person. These fees are paid out of the public revenue, and go back into the public revenue, so that in these cases it is practically taking money out of one pocket and putting it into the other. The object of the Bill is merely to save unnecessary book-keeping by the department which pays the fees and the Court which receives them, and will exempt from the payment of fees no person or body now liable to pay them, and will not make the least difference to the revenue. A similar provision is made in the laws of many other Colonies.

The Bill is limited to the Magistrates' Courts, as fees in the Supreme Court are dealt with by Rules of Court made by the Judges.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE "MAGISTRATES' COURTS ORDINANCE, 1893, AS TO
"PAYMENT OF FEES BY GOVERNMENT DEPART-"MENTS."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows:—

Court fees not to be paid by Government Departments. No. 10 of 1893. 1. No Court fees or fees payable to any Officer of the Court shall be taken under the Schedule to the Magistrates' Courts Ordinance, 1893, or under any Order of the Governor-in-Council made under section fifty-seven of the said Ordinance in respect of any proceedings where such fees would be payable by any Government Department; but such fees shall nevertheless be taken as paid for the purpose of assessing any costs which the Court shall direct to be paid.

Short title. No. 10 of 1893. 2. This Ordinance may be cited as the Magistrates' Courts (Payment of Fees) Ordinance, 1909, and shall be construed as one with the Magistrates' Courts Ordinance, 1893.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.(REVIEW OF TAXATION OF COSTS.)

THIS 13TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

JOSEPH WILSON AND ORS.

versus

MICHAEL STEPNEY MUNRO AND SCHIEVANSANKER.

This is an appeal from the taxation of the defendant Schievalsanker's bill of costs on the ground that the Taxing Master was in error in disallowing all the items mentioned in the list attached and only allowing disbursement as the said bill of costs should have been taxed on the higher scale as it was proved at the hearing that the subject matter in respect of which the action was brought exceeded the value of $250.

There was no decision given as to the value of the property as that was not in issue.

In order to uphold this appeal it would be necessary to give such decision and I do not think it is competent for me to do so after the hearing.

The action as brought was an opposition to the transport of a property being valued at $240 and after dealing with the opposition I was functus officio. I dismiss the appeal with costs which I fix at $5.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 14TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

JEEREAH, Appellant,

versus

ABDULLA, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a Magistrate sitting in the Georgetown Judicial District who gave judgment for the plaintiff for $28 51 and costs $3 79.

The reasons for appeal are:

The decision is erroneous in point of law, because (a) The evidence did not establish any contract of sale in law of the goods mentioned in the bill of particulars and the subject matter of the action.

(b) There was no proof that the prices charged for the goods in question were fixed between the defendant and the said Osmanali.

(c) The evidence is insufficient to establish a transfer and cession of action by the Official Receiver as the assignee of the book debt in question, to and in favour of the plaintiff nor is there any allegation of same in the plaint filed.

(d) There was no proof of the delivery of the books of account of the said Osmanali by the Official Receiver to the plaintiff in pursuance of the said transfer and cession of action.

It appears that Abdulla purchased from the Official Receiver all the book debts of the insolvent Osmanali, and obtained a receipt which was produced at the hearing as were also the books of Osmanali, the latter showing an indebtedness by the appellant of the sum sued for. The insolvent also gave evidence and identified the ledger produced which contained the account of Jeereah in which the goods bought with their prices and the cash paid were entered.

In arguing reasons (a) (b) the learned counsel for the appellant urged that even if Osmanali's evidence was accepted as correct it did not amount to a contract of sale in law and the case of Blake v O'Connor, 14th Oct., 1908, was cited. That case was whether a contract of sale was substituted for an original loan of goods, in which no prices were fixed and the Chief Justice held that a statement, that it was a custom in the gold-fields when goods were borrowed and not returned to treat them as being sold was not sufficient to satisfy the requirements of a contract of sale, in which fixed prices were necessary. The order was for certain quantities of goods without prices being put to them. The prices were subsequently made up when the goods not being returned were treated as having been sold apparently without any reference to the person who borrowed the goods, the manager who signed the acknowledgment of indebtedness only being authorized to sign the orders on the loan arrangement.

In this case the evidence went to show that the appellant Jeereah dealt regularly with Osmanali, and paid at intervals on account of the goods she purchased. By section 15 of 20 of 1893, “the Court may permit any party to a civil cause or matter to use his books of account kept in the course of his business as evidence in support of his claim or defence if the same appear to have been kept in the course of business with such a reasonable degree of regularity as to be satisfactory to the Court.”

As to reason (c) the production of the books which must have been in the custody of the Official Receiver was prima facie evidence of their delivery to the plaintiff. The Official Receiver by virtue of the Insolvency Ordinance, sold the book debts of Osmanali to the plaintiff and put him in a position to sue for their recovery.

It was argued that the right of action was not ceded and, that being so, the plaintiff if he sued at all should have done so in the name of the debtor because there are two actions, the actio directa and the utilis actio. In the commentary on Cessions of Actions by Johannes A. Sande, translated by P. C. Anders, which was used by the learned counsel for the appellant, it is said that the direct action is inseparably united with the contracting parties and that the actio utilis passes when a person has sold his action. Later on in the same author it is stated (p 135) “lastly the said actio utilis which is transferred by cession becomes the sole property of the recipient for the cessionary is said to hold it in his own name, wherefore the cessionary is required to advance it in his own name in the Court and to mention himself in his declaration.”

I have no doubt that the provisions of the Insolvency Ordinance by which the book debts may be sold and transferred as a whole to any person, have the effect of permitting such person to sue in his own name for the debts due to the insolvent, stating in his plaint the fact of how he acquired the right.

I think the Magistrate was right in his decision and I dismiss the appeal with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

*Re Estate T. W. CHILCOTT, deceased,
Ex parte MARCENA MAHALA STEPHNEY CHILCOTT.*

This is an application for an order directing the Official Receiver, as assignee of the property of Thomas William Chilcott, deceased, to pay to the said Marcena Mahala Stephney Chilcott the sum of $475, being her one-half share in the purchase money of east half lot number 204, Bourda, with the buildings thereon, which was sold for $950.

There are no questions as to the facts in this case so far as the mover being the sole heiress, ab intestato, of her mother, who was married in community of property to her husband, and was, therefore, entitled to half of the property in question on the death of her mother. At the time of her mother's death the mover was a minor; her father married a second time, and before doing so made an affidavit declaring the common property to be the lot 204, Bourda, valued at $320, and movables, valued at $65 26, half of which devolved on the daughter as sole heiress. There is no doubt that this was a fair valuation at the time. For the half a claim was sent in to the Official Receiver on 15th January, 1909, the claim being based on the value as shown by the inventory. The Official Receiver applied to the Court for directions as to whether, this claim or a claim of The British Guiana Building Society, had priority.

Miss Chilcott was successful in her contention that her claim was preferent, and judgment was given to that effect. In the meantime transport was passed and she joined in it on the condition that the purchase money should be retained by the Official Receiver until judgment was given. The claim, when made, was supported by a reference to the affidavit of the father, made on the 8th July, 1890, before his second marriage, to which the inventory, already referred to, was attached, giving the property held in community by him and his first wife (applicant's mother) who died on 22nd December, 1888. This was termed "a voucher."

An application was made at the hearing to increase the claim, but the learned acting Judge did not allow this, as the point he was deciding was as to the priority of two claims; he, however, gave it as an obiter dictum that Miss Chilcott was only entitled to the half value of the property at the time it devolved on her.

It is now argued that the community continued, after the death of Miss Chilcott's mother, between herself and her father, as he remained in possession, and that, therefore, she can claim the half of the amount the property was sold for. According to the authorities a surviving spouse is bound to prepare an inventory of the minor's property by the general law of Holland (Vander Keesel, CXXVII.), and make an assignment.

An inventory was made in this case and was verified by an affidavit, and was used, as already said, in support of the first application. Miss Chilcott, by a letter dated 13th February, 1909, when she had full knowledge of all the facts, stated she had arranged to transport her interest in and to E¹ 204, Bourda, for value already received, and in due course attended and signed the transport. The arrangement was that the purchase money was to be received and held by the Official Receiver, pending the decision of the Court. It was argued that this was done to secure a good sale.

The original transport shows the price paid to have been $250, but, as it was appraised in the Town Books at $320, that amount was put as its value in the inventory. It is evident, therefore, that the lot has greatly increased in value. The expense incurred in bringing about this increase must have been borne by Chilcott, and, according to Vander Keesel, CXXII., "useful expenses" can be recovered. What these amounted to there is nothing to show.

There is nothing definite in the authorities, as far as I can find, on the question of the continuance of the community under circumstances similar to those in this case. In Voet Bk. XXIV., tit. III., 33, which deals with the staying or termination of the community, it is said that if the surviving spouse is the sole guardian of his children "it is necessary for him, since he cannot either render to himself or debate and scrutinize the inventory, either to apply for the appointment of a curator for the children below puberty to receive the inventory in their names and object to it if he thinks there is any reason for doing so, or, at any rate, the nearest cognates of the deceased spouse should be assumed by the guardian father in order that they may represent the children in the examination of the inventory rendered, and dispute any incorrect entries."

The inventory made by Chilcott bears a registered number and was apparently deposited somewhere.

Later on in the paragraph cited above Voet says: "Many points regarding this inventory and the modes of suspending or terminating the continuation it is impossible to discuss upon general principles of law, but the customs of particular places must be considered." Voet then details questions which may arise. In paragraph 34 he says "In this diversity of customs and statutes with regard to the continued community or its dissolution, the modes of dissolving it, and the drawing up of the inventory, it appears that the law of that place only is to be observed in which the spouses were domiciled at the time their marriage was dissolved."

Another question might also arise as to the position of the twice married, the heirs of the deceased spouse and the second spouse, but it is not necessary to discuss this.

Chilcott effected, at various times, mortgages on this property, the last one being that claimed against the estate. What the result would have been of an action to set aside this mortgage it is not necessary to discuss: the property has been transported to the mortgagees who have again transported it.

A good deal of argument was based on passages in Maasdorp dealing with Cape law, but in that colony there is a special Ordinance as to the continuance of community which can only take effect where it has been expressly provided for by ante-nuptial contract or by the last will of the first dying spouse, in which case the survivor is spoken of as the voedelhouder (estate holder).

The author specially says: "By the customs of 'some parts of the Netherlands, the community of 'property which subsisted between the spouses was 'continued between the survivor and the heirs of the 'first dying, but no such custom has ever been 'recognized in this colony."

Reference is made to Voet 24. 3. 28. 35., which I have cited above.

On the whole I am of opinion that the mover cannot succeed, firstly, because she joined in the transport of her share in the property after putting in a distinct claim based on the inventory and valuation with a full knowledge of all the facts, and, secondly, because there is nothing to show that the enhanced value was not the result of useful expenses which might be recoverable.

In the case of Williams v. Williams and others, Tredgold and Buchanan, 1895, 392, cited, a mortgage was held to be void against half of the property mortgaged, but the question as to improvements was not dealt with.

I dismiss the application with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

THIS 16TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

J. DACOSTA, Appellant,
versus

M. J. JARDIM, Respondent,

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate sitting in the Georgetown Judicial District, who, on the 15th June, 1909, ordered the defendant to deliver up a bank book or failing such delivery to pay to the plaintiff the sum of $20 being the sum originally deposited on behalf of the minor Adelaide D'Oliviera by the defendant together with any accrued interest that may be standing to the credit of the account.

The reasons of appeal are numerous but it is only necessary to consider one, namely, reason 3 d.

The matter was one already decided by the Magistrate's Court.

It appears from the papers sent in that a certificate of dismissal was admitted in evidence by which the same Magistrate certified that he dismissed an action between the same parties for the delivery of the same book or to pay the same amount.

The Magistrate, in his reason for decision, says, it was argued that the matter was res judicata there having been a nonsuit of the same matter between the same parties and that he held the defence was of no avail as he never intended when granting the nonsuit that such should be a final judgment between the parties.

According to rule 33 of the Magistrate's Court "when under section 23 of the Petty Debts recovery Ordinance, 1893 a Magistrate dismisses the plaintiff on the merits he shall make an order of dismissal and may, upon the application of the defendant, furnish him with a certificate in the form given in the schedule which said certificate afterwards upon being produced without further proof shall, unless the order of dismissal be reversed on appeal, be a bar to any subsequent plaintiff for the same cause of action."

The certificate in this case is in the required form, and states that the claim "was on the 25th May, 1909, dismissed by me with costs." This is signed by the Magistrate. There is no mention of the fact of nonsuit and the certificate must be taken to mean what it states.

This being so it was a bar to any subsequent plaintiff for the same cause of action.

There is no power to issue a certificate of dismissal except when the case is dismissed on the merits. When it is issued it is a complete bar.

I reverse the decision of the Magistrate with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 19TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

B. G. CONGREGATIONAL UNION

versus

REV. R. T. FRANK.

This is an application for an interim order of injunction restraining the defendant, in this action, his agents and servants, acting with him or under his instructions, and each and every of them, from preaching in the Congregational chapels, meeting houses and buildings at Lonsdale, Edinburgh and De Kinderen, all on the east bank of Berbice, or any of them, or any other church, chapel, meeting house or building, the property of the British Guiana Congregational Union, and from trespassing in or in any other manner whatsoever interfering with any church, chapel, meeting house or building of the said Union, and from trespassing on or in any manner whatsoever interfering with any other property, movable or immovable, of the said Union.

By Ordinance 7 of 1901, the Chairman, Treasurer and Secretary of the British Guiana Congregational Union may jointly acquire and hold, both movable and immovable, property for and on behalf of the London Missionary Society, and all immovable property in this colony transported, granted by letters of decree, or otherwise conveyed, granted or given, to and in favour of the London Missionary Society, by the name of the London Missionary Society, and also to any person or persons, for and on behalf of the said Society, shall vest in the Chairman, the Treasurer and the Secretary of the British Guiana Congregational Union, jointly, and may be dealt with under the Ordinance.

In case it is necessary or expedient, the Chairman, the Treasurer and the Secretary of the British Guiana Congregational Union may, for the purposes of the London Missionary Society, and with the sanction of the Union, sell or mortgage any immovable property in the colony, which may vest in them by virtue of this Ordinance.

The British Guiana Congregational Union, therefore, are legal owners of the immovable properties so vested, over which they have, prima facie, the control, together with the control of any movable property they may hold under the same conditions.

The affidavits show that such control has been interfered with, and that the Rev. R. T. Frank is not a member of the British Guiana Congregational Union, which body have all rights over the property as defined by the Ordinance.

This being an application for an interim injunction, it is only necessary for me to deal with the questions whether the applicants have made out a prima facie case on which there is a likelihood of their succeeding, and whether the balance of convenience renders it desirable to restrain the respondent, his agents and servants, from interfering, in the interim, with the right of control, including the use of the properties, movable and immovable, held by and vested in the British Guiana Congregational Union, until such time as the action for the injunction is determined.

After careful consideration I have come to the conclusion that it is expedient to grant the interim injunction, which I do.

The costs of this application will be costs in the cause.

Government Notices.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
27th July, 1909.

41.
THE acting Governor has directed the publication, for general information, of the following Report by Mr. F. A. Stockdale, B.A., F.L.S., Assistant Director of Science and Agriculture, on the Caterpillar attacking coconut and other palms at and around Mahaicony.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND AGRICULTURE,
Botanic Gardens,
5th July, 1909.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit, herewith, a brief report on the caterpillar attacking coconut and other palms at and around Mahaicony. A visit was paid to various coconut plantations in that district on April 20 last, in company with Mr. A. L. Mansfield, Senior Agricultural Instructor, when a careful examination of the pest was made in the field and when specimens were collected for laboratory investigations.

2. The adult insect was bred through from caterpillars collected and was identical with the one reported upon by Mr. Bartlett (the former Government Botanist) in September, 1905, when large areas of coconuts were considerably damaged at Pln. Grove near Clonbrock. It has been identified as Brassolis Sophorae, Linn. from specimens sent in 1905 to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture.

3. The caterpillars when newly hatched measure about $\frac{1}{8}$ inch in length, but they grew very rapidly, and quickly cause a large amount of damage to the leaves of the palms. When full grown they measure from $2\frac{1}{8}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length. They are dark brown in colour with longitudinal lines of light brown along the sides of the body. The head is of a dark reddish-brown colour, and bears two brownish-black spots. The caterpillars are gregarious, for they rest and feed together in large numbers, and when moving from one place to another they travel in procession. They have a habit also of forming what are called "nests." When the caterpillars are young, the "nests" are formed by joining the edges of single leaflets together by means of strong, light-brown threads.

These "nests" may be open at both ends or the terminal end may be almost completely closed. In these, the caterpillars rest during the day, all their heads pointing towards the larger opening towards that end of the leaflet where it joins to the mid-rib of the leaf. As the caterpillars increase in size, however, one leaflet is no longer sufficient to afford comfortable accommodation. The "nests" are now made of several leaflets joined together to form long pyramidal pockets which may be open at both ends or in a few cases closed at the apex. The larger opening of a "nest" usually measures from 2-3 inches in diameter, and if the "nest" be carefully examined, it will be found that several hundreds of caterpillars are collected together, all having their heads pointed upwards towards this opening. These "nests" of caterpillars often weigh several pounds and by reason of their weight usually hang vertically downwards from the mid-rib of the leaf. They are very conspicuous and can readily be seen even at considerable distances, as may be noted by an examination of the accompanying photograph.* In badly attacked trees, they are very striking as they often are the only remaining green parts of the leaves, for the caterpillars devour all the leaflets on the tree before commencing upon those which have been used for making the "nests." The caterpillars only come out of these "nests" at night, for the purpose of feeding.

4. The caterpillars eat all the green parts of the leaf, leaving only the central mid-rib of the leaf, and the principal veins of the leaflets. They pass from leaf to leaf until all are devoured, and then pass to other trees. The attached photograph* will present some idea of the damage that can be done, while one has only to look at the coconut and other palms at the present time in Georgetown to note some of the ravages of this insect. The trees are denuded of the whole of their leaves, and I am informed that 12-18 months are necessary for the coconut palm to recover, while cabbage and other palms, if badly attacked, rarely recover in a satisfactory manner. A large portion of one estate at Mahaicony was in this leafless condition, and the loss must be very great. It is necessary, therefore, that remedial measures should be widely adopted.

REMEDIAL MEASURES.

5. In recommending remedial measures against fungus diseases and insect pests, it has been found necessary in the tropics to always recommend at first the simplest possible remedy. It has been found to be of little or no use to recommend remedies, that require skilled labour to carry them out. It is far better to recommend at first the simplest remedy and attempt to encourage cultivators to give it a satisfactory trial. If it is successful, such will appeal to them, and they will be the more willing to give other suggested improvements upon that remedy a careful trial. It is necessary to educate cultivators to adopt remedial measures for plant diseases and to carry out ordinary plant sanitation. This process of education must be slow, and the beginning must be made at the bottom. For this reason, I recommend but one remedy for this caterpillar attack, and that is the simplest possible.

The habit of the caterpillar in living in "nests" during the day time is a fortunate one from the cultivators point of view. Large numbers of caterpillars collect in these "nests." If they are cut down the caterpillars will be removed from the trees. It is of no use, however, cutting down the nests, unless the caterpillars they contain are destroyed, and the question naturally arises as to the most economical method of destroying them. They can be destroyed by being crushed or by being cut up by a cutlass, or by being immersed in a pail of water on the surface of which some kerosene oil has been poured. I have seen the crushing method carried out, and for several reasons I consider that this method would be the most satisfactory to recommend at present. The "nests" as they are cut down from the trees contain hundreds of caterpillars, which can quickly be destroyed by crushing the nests with a piece of wood in the form of a small "rammer."

Caterpillars may escape, but if the work is carefully carried out, these escapes should be reduced to a minimum. When the caterpillars are numerous, as they appear to be at certain times of the year, this work could be carried out by gangs under a competent driver. The men should work in pairs, one for climbing the trees and cutting down the nests, and the other for destroying the caterpillars as they fall. When the caterpillars are not in large numbers, they would probably be kept in satisfactory check by making one man, with a boy to climb any tree attacked, inspect the estate at regular intervals to destroy all the "nests" that can be found. By always employing the same man for this work, he would gradually be trained to rapidly detect nests, for it is particularly striking how much more rapidly the trained eye can detect these nests than the untrained, and at much greater distances. The larger estates would probably require the whole time of such a man for this sanitation work, but on the smaller ones it would only be necessary for such visits of inspection to be made periodically to ensure satisfactory control.

The labourers might be paid by the number of nests they destroy, and I believe on some estates the price of 2 cents per nest has been paid for their destruction. It is held by some that such remedial measures are expensive, and I was informed that as much as $20 per week has been paid, at certain times, for the destruction of these nests at 2 cents each. It is essential however that remedial measures should be adopted if the coconut industry of the district is not desired to suffer materially during the next year or so. Whether it is more economical for the welfare of the district in general and for the cultivators of coconuts in particular to expend sums of money on remedial measures or to allow all the leaves to be eaten off the trees and to have no crops for eighteen months or two years is the important question for cultivators to consider. It is simply a profit and loss calculation, and there can be little doubt as to which method would prove the more profitable. Some people hold that the rest which the trees are enforced to take, through having all the leaves eaten off, results in much larger yields of nuts. This may perhaps be the case in many instances, but again the following questions require answers :—

- (1) How much larger are these crops ?
- (2) Are the nuts as large as before the attack, and do they command as high a price ?
- (3) What is the value of these increased crops ?
- (4) What would be the estimated value of the eighteen months or two years crops lost through the attacks of the caterpillars, and
- (5) How long will it take for the increased crops, assuming they remain uniform, to balance the loss of crops for nearly two years ?

Again, in my opinion, there can be little doubt that the adoption of remedial measures will be found to be the more profitable.

6. To summarize the remedial measures, therefore :—Gangs under reliable drivers should be employed to cut out the "nests" of caterpillars from the trees, and the caterpillars they contain should be destroyed by being crushed. The work should be continuous, and periodic inspections should be made part of the routine work of coconut cultivators. The destruction of "nests" of caterpillars has been undertaken by some of the planters of the Mahaicony district with satisfactory results, even though they have again and again been infected by their negligent neighbours. It only remains, therefore to encourage all cultivators to undertake this work.

7. In conclusion, I would urge the necessity of co-operation in this work of checking and preventing this insect attack. It is of little or no use for an individual cultivator to attempt to do his utmost in the direction of remedial measures, while he is surrounded by neighbours who do nothing, and whose cultivations are sources of infection for the whole district. This neglect on the part of some cultivators is to be sincerely regretted. The importance of prompt measures for the destruction of insect pests or fungus diseases has yet to be fully recognised. I have, therefore, added a short appendix to this report, giving in plain language the simplest description of the pest and of the methods for remedial measures. This might serve as a basis for a leaflet to be issued for the information of coconut cultivators. After a certain time has elapsed for the proper trial of remedial measures, a careful inspection of the district might again be desirable in order to ascertain whether cultivators were doing their utmost in this direction.

In the Federated Malay States strict legislation is in operation in connexion with beetle pests of the coconut, while an Ordinance, a copy of which is attached,* has been passed, though not yet enforced, in Trinidad "to prevent the dissemination and to provide for the eradication of diseases affecting vegetation." In the first instance, education in regard to the insect pests and fungus diseases of vegetation in the colony is necessary. Afterwards, there would appear to be no reason why legislation should not be introduced to prevent the spread of the pests and diseases that affect the various crops of this colony. The infectious and other diseases of the person and of animals have received careful attention, and it is of equal importance that diseases affecting vegetation should also be carefully looked after.

I have, &c.,

F. A. STOCKDALE,
Assistant Director & Government Botanist.

APPENDIX I.

Life History of Insect (largely taken from notes made by Mr. Bartlett.)

The eggs are laid in masses of 100-150 on the stem or under sides of the leaves of the coconut and other palms. They are smooth and shiny, pinkish in colour, and round except where they are in contact with one another. They measure about $\frac{1}{32}$ inch in diameter. The apices of the eggs turn a slate colour a short time before they are going to hatch, owing to the dark-coloured heads of the young larvae showing through the translucent eggshells. It is estimated that the eggs take a little over a fortnight to hatch.

All the young larvae of an egg-mass emerge also most simultaneously through small circular holes. When newly hatched they slightly exceed $\frac{1}{8}$ inch in length. They are reddish-brown in colour with pale yellow lines running the whole length of the body, and they have large smooth dark-reddish heads about twice the width of the body. After the first 24 hours (during which time they refuse to feed) they commence eating the green parts of coconut and other palm leaves with great voracity. They rapidly increase in size, and become darker in colour. When they are full grown they measure from $2\frac{1}{8}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, and are of a dark brown colour with longitudinal stripes of light brown, while their heads are of a dark reddish-brown colour with two brownish-black spots. They crawl very quickly, and spin a stout brownish-coloured thread. They are gregarious. They feed only at night, and rest in the day time in long pyramidal pockets or "nests" formed by binding leaflets of the attacked trees together. In these "nests," several hundreds of the larvae collect together, with all their heads pointing towards the larger and upper opening. When the larvae move from place to place they travel in possession, and when they come to rest, they form closely packed masses; all the larvae pointing in the same direction. The duration of the larval stage is not accurately known, but it is estimated to be nearly three months. As the larvae become full grown, they cease to eat and finally attach themselves by their posterior extremities, generally to the under surfaces of the leaves and branches of the coconut and other plants. They assume a humped position, but their heads always remain suspended downwards. In a short time the larval skin is cast off.

The pupae are of two sizes. The female is the larger and averages about 1 inch in length, while the male is somewhat smaller. The ground colour is a pinkish-brown. They are five irregular brown lines, bordered on either side with white, running the whole length of the body along the back and sides, and two additional brown lines on the under side of the abdominal part. The pupae are smooth, with the exception of a few scattered dark-brown hairs. The thorax is separated from the abdomen by a ring devoid of workings, and the outlines of the head, eyes, and wings of the future butterfly can clearly be seen. The pupal stage lasts about 14 days.

The butterflies are of two sizes. The females are the larger and measure from $3\frac{1}{4}$ - $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches across the expanded wings, while the males only measure about $2\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The wings are of a dark-brown colour and have an irregular yellowish-orange band running obliquely across the forewings, and a less conspicuous band of dingy orange running almost parallel to the outer margin of the hind wings. The under surfaces of the wings are light brown, spotted with minute white dots. The oblique orange band is plainly visible under the fore-wings, and in addition there are two wavy dark-brown lines parallel and close to the margins. On the under sides of the hind-wings are four to six round spots outlined with black and there are two similar but smaller spots on the under surface of the fore-wings. The coloured markings in the male are more conspicuous than are those of the female. The thorax is of the same dark brown colour as the wings, but the abdomen is a reddish-brown. The butterflies remain motionless in the shade, during the day time and commence to fly at about 4 to 4.30 p.m. The number of broods during a year is not yet known.

Amongst the natural enemies, it has been noticed that many birds, such as chicken-hawks, "old-witch" birds, kiskadees, etc., feast upon the caterpillars congregated together in their "nests." The egg parasites were observed by Mr. Bartlett, and also a parasite of the pupae. These, to some extent, must keep in check an increase of the insects during certain times.

APPENDIX II.

Information for small growers in regard to the Caterpillar pest of coconuts.

For some time past, a caterpillar has been attacking many of the coconut and other palms in the colony. It is, at the present moment particularly prevalent in the neighbourhood of Mahaicony, where it is causing considerable damage to the coconut cultivations.

This caterpillar eats the leaves of the coconut, and often strips them of all the green parts, leaving only the central mid-rib of the leaf and the principal lateral veins. When it is young, it is of a brownish-red colour with pale yellow stripes running along the whole length of the body but as it becomes older and larger it becomes dark brown in colour with longitudinal lines of light brown along the sides of the body. The head is of a dark reddish-brown colour and bears two brownish-black spots. The caterpillars when fully grown measure from $2\frac{1}{3}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length.

They feed during the night time, and rest during the day in what are called "nests." When the caterpillars are young the "nests" are formed by joining the edges of single leaflets together by means of strong light-brown threads, but as they increase in size several leaflets are joined together to form conspicuous pyramid-shaped pockets. In these "nests," several hundreds of the caterpillars are collected together during the day time, and if they are examined, it will be found that their heads all point in one direction.

These "nests" are very conspicuous and can often be seen at considerable distances, frequently hanging vertically downwards by reason of their weight.

The caterpillars are hatched from eggs, which are laid by the butterfly on the stems or undersides of the coconut or other trees in the neighbourhood. The eggs are laid in clusters of 100 to 150 eggs, and can easily be found at certain times of the year. When the caterpillars are full grown they 'spin up' on the undersides of the leaves of the coconut, or upon the branches and leaves of other plants. These are the pupæ or cocoons. They are much shorter and much thicker than the caterpillars and are slightly curved. They are of a pinkish-brown colour, with brown markings.

After about a fortnight, the butterflies come out from the pupal skin. They are of two sizes. The larger one is the female, and has wings of a dark brown colour with a broad yellowish-orange band across the forewings and a less marked band of a dingy orange colour running parallel with the outer margin of the hind wings. The smaller is the male and the orange markings are more conspicuous. The undersides of the wings are of a light-brown colour speckled with minute white dots and with four or six round spots outlined with black undersides of the hind wings and two on the undersides of the forewings. During the day-time, these butterflies may be seen resting upon the trunks, or undersides of the leaves of the palms. The females lay eggs from which a new lot of caterpillars is hatched.

REMEDIES.

The caterpillars eat all the green parts of the leaves and they proceed from leaf to leaf until the tree is reduced to a leafless condition. Such a tree loses all its nuts and cannot bear good crops for another eighteen months or two years. If the caterpillars are in quantity, considerable damage will be done and a great loss of money experienced. They can be kept in check by cutting down and destroying the "nests." A boy should be sent up the tree to cut down the "nests" while another person remains below with a piece of wood to crush them. Every caterpillar should be killed if possible and the work must be carried out continuously. Periodic inspections for caterpillars should be made part of the routine work of coconut cultivations and all nests found carefully destroyed. It has been undertaken by some growers and the results have been entirely satisfactory. The work might be paid for at a certain rate per "nest" destroyed, provided that a reliable man is employed, and it will be found much cheaper to undertake this simple remedy than to allow your trees to be eaten down and to have no crops for eighteen months or over. The remedy advised is a simple one and will be found to check the caterpillars if it is carefully carried out.

46. 30th July, 1909.
HIS Excellency the acting Governor directs the publication for general information of the following Despatch from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
 Acting Government Secretary.

Downing Street,
 6th July, 1909.

Sir,—With reference to my despatch No. 65 of the 2nd of March last, I have the honour to transmit to you the accompanying copy of a new time-table for the Intercolonial Mail services carried on by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company which has been drawn up after consultation between the Colonial Office and the Company, and which, it is hoped, will lead to an improvement in the steamship communication between the Colonies concerned.

2. Neither Barbados nor British Guiana are very much affected by these changes; in fact the latter is not directly affected at all, whilst the former is only primarily concerned with the change in the hour of departure of the Northern Islands steamer from 6 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday: on the other hand under the new service both calls at Saint Vincent will commence in daylight, two more hours of daylight will be allotted to St. Kitts, and Nevis will have the advantage of a return call.

3. Both Sir J. Hayes Sadler, and Sir B. Sweet-Escott have been consulted with regard to the changes in the time-tables so far as they affect the Windward Islands and the Leeward Islands respectively and they have expressed their readiness to give a trial to the new service; the changes themselves have been proposed as the result of a protracted examination of the whole question: and, though I am aware that no service which involves a large number of calls within a comparatively short time can be expected to give universal satisfaction, I hope, nevertheless, that the present time-table will be found in several respects to compare advantageously with that which preceded it.

4. In any case it will be well to carry on the new service for a time by way of experiment and, as I can see no reason why this experiment should not commence forthwith, I propose that the time-tables should be altered for the steamers which leave Barbados for Demerara and the Northern Islands respectively on the 3rd of August.

5. I am asking the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company to arrange accordingly with their Marine Superintendent in the West Indies, and I request that you will take immediate steps to give publicity to the new time-table in British Guiana. I shall be glad if you will furnish me with a report on the new service so far as it affects the Colony under your Government, as soon as you are in a position to judge whether it constitutes an improvement or not.

I have, etc.,

(Sgd.) CREWE.

The Officer Administering the Government of British Guiana.

Government Notices.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

3rd August, 1909.

55.
THE following Bills, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, are hereby published for general information.

By Command,

J. HAMPDEN KING,
Acting Government Secretary.

THE ROADS BILL, 1909.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to give effect to the Resolution passed by the Combined Court at the last Annual Session authorizing the maintenance of all the public roads of the Colony out of the public revenue, and relieving the sugar estates of the maintenance of the roads passing through them.

The passing of the above Resolution necessitated considerable amendment in the Roads Ordinance, 1905, and it was therefore thought desirable to repeal and re-enact it with the necessary alterations in preference to passing an amending Ordinance merely.

As all roads will in future be maintained by the Public Works Department out of the public revenue, it was though unnecessary to keep up the distinction between carriage and bridle roads, which has been made in previous Road Ordinances, and accordingly this distinction has been omitted from the Bill, leaving the Public Works Department to construct and maintain the roads in accordance with the needs of each district and the traffic which passes over it.

With the above exception the Bill makes no change in the law beyond that necessary for providing for the upkeep of all the public roads at the public expense.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO MAKE PROVISION "FOR THE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF
"THE PUBLIC ROADS OF THE COLONY."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

2.—(1.) The Governor-in-Council may, from time to time, by proclamation published in the Gazette, declare that any road not mentioned in the Schedule to this Ordinance, shall be constructed and maintained out of moneys provided by the Combined Court, and thereupon all the provisions of this Ordinance shall apply to such road in the same manner as if it had been mentioned in the said Schedule.

(2.) The Governor-in-Council in like manner may order that any road mentioned in the said Schedule shall cease to be maintained as aforesaid and thereupon the provisions of this Ordinance shall no longer apply to such road.

(3.) The Governor-in-Council in like manner may revoke, alter or amend the said Schedule. (13 of 1905, s. 12, and 4 of 1906, s. 3.)

THE HABITUAL CRIMINALS BILL, 1909.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The treatment of habitual offenders and hardened criminals is a problem that has long puzzled those whose duty brings them in contact with the criminal classes, whether as philanthropists or as administrators of the law. Experience shows that there is a class of criminals whom no punishments seem to deter, and who, in spite of heavy sentences, commit crimes again and again, and return to goal almost as soon as they are liberated. The twofold object of punishment, the reformation of the offender and the deterring of others, seems to entirely fail in their case. This Bill is an attempt to deal with such offenders. The principle upon which it is based is that those who have shown themselves unwilling or unable to keep from crime shall be kept out of harms way for the protection of the public, at all events until they have shown that they can be trusted to be at liberty and that society has nothing further to fear from them. The length of time the criminal is detained will depend upon himself, and it will be possible for him to regain his liberty at any time on showing that he is willing to lead an honest life.

The Bill provides that a Judge may order an habitual criminal to be detained after the expiration of his sentence, called "preventive detention" (Clause 1), which will continue till the criminal shows that he can safely be liberated, but his case must be considered at least once every three years to see if he can safely be liberated, and if at the end of ten years he has not been liberated a special report of his case must be made to the Secretary of State, and provision is also made for liberating on licence any person under detention if he shows he is likely to lead an honest life. (Clause 4).

A person sentenced to preventive detention may appeal to the Full Court against the sentence (Clause 2), and persons under such detention can be treated less rigorously than convicts under sentence of penal servitude, and every effort is to be made to reform them and fit them to earn an honest livelihood. (Clause 3).

The Bill is based largely on an Act passed in England last year for the same purpose, Part II of the Prevention of Crime Act, 1908, (8 Edw. 7. c. 59), and it is hoped that in conjunction with two other measures recently passed, the Young Offenders Detention Ordinance, 1909 (No. 11 of 1909), and the Probation of Offenders Ordinance, 1909 (No. 16 of 1909), it will do something to reduce the class of habitual criminals in the colony. The only important difference between this Bill and the English Act, is that in the latter the period of preventive detention can in no case exceed ten years, while under the Bill the period of detention depends on the criminal himself.

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

1.—(1.) Where a person is convicted on indictment of a crime committed after the passing of this Ordinance, and subsequently the offender admits that he is, or is found by a jury to be a habitual criminal, and the Court passes a sentence of penal servitude, the court, if of opinion that by reason of his criminal habits and mode of life it is expedient for the protection of the public that the offender should be kept in detention for a lengthened period of years, may pass a further sentence ordering that on the determination of the sentence of penal servitude he be detained during His Majesty's pleasure, and such detention is hereinafter referred to as preventive detention, and a person on whom such a sentence is passed shall, whilst undergoing both the sentence of penal servitude and the sentence of preventive detention, be deemed for all purposes to be a person convicted of felony.

Power of Court to pass sentence of preventive detention in addition to penal servitude or imprisonment.

(2.) A person shall not be found to be a habitual criminal unless the jury finds on evidence,—

(a) that since attaining the age of sixteen years he has at least three times previously to the conviction of the crime charged in the indictment been convicted of a crime, whether such conviction was before or after the passing of this Ordinance, and that he is a person persistently leading a dishonest or criminal life ; or

(b) that he has on such a previous conviction been found to be an habitual criminal and sentenced to preventive detention.

(3.) In any indictment under this section it shall be sufficient, after charging the crime, to state that the offender is a habitual criminal.

(4.) In the proceedings on the indictment the offender shall in the first instance be arraigned on so much only of the indictment as charges the crime, and if on arraignment he pleads guilty or is found guilty by the jury, the jury shall be charged to inquire whether he is a habitual criminal, and in that case it shall not be necessary to swear the jury again :

Provided that a charge of being a habitual criminal shall not be inserted in an indictment unless not less than seven days' notice has been given to the proper officer of the court by which the offender is to be tried, and to the offender, that it is intended to insert such a charge, and the notice to the offender shall specify the previous convictions and the other grounds upon which it is intended to ground the charge.

(5.) Without prejudice to any right of the accused to tender evidence as to his character and repute, evidence of character and repute may, if the Court thinks fit, be admitted as evidence on the question whether the accused is or is not leading persistently a dishonest or criminal life.

Appeal against sentence to Full Court.
No. 7 of 1893.

2. A person sentenced to preventive detention may appeal against the sentence to the Full Court constituted under the Supreme Court Ordinance, 1893, and the Judges of the Supreme Court shall have power from time to time to make Rules of Court in manner provided by section fifty-eight of the said Ordinance regulating the procedure in such appeals.

Detention in prison of persons undergoing preventive
detention.

3.—(1.) The sentence of preventive detention shall take effect immediately on the determination of the sentence of penal servitude, whether that sentence is determined by effluxion of time or by order of the Governor at such earlier date as the Governor having regard to the time at which the convict, sentenced to penal servitude alone, would ordinarily have been licensed to be at large, may direct.

(2.) Persons undergoing preventive detention shall be confined in any prison which the Governor may set apart for the purpose, and shall (save as otherwise provided by this Ordinance) be subject to the law for the time being in force with respect to penal servitude as if they were undergoing penal servitude :

Provided that the rules applicable to convicts and convict prisons shall apply to persons undergoing preventive detention, and to the prisons or parts of prisons in which they are detained, subject to such modifications in the direction of a less rigorous treatment as the Governor may prescribe by prison rules within the meaning of the Prison Ordinance, 1892.

(3.) Persons undergoing preventive detention shall be subjected to such disciplinary and reformatory influences, and shall be employed on such work, as may be best fitted to make them able and willing to earn an honest livelihood on discharge.

(4.) The Governor shall appoint for every such prison or part of a prison so set apart a board of visitors of whom not less than two shall be justices of the peace, with such powers and duties as may be possible by such prison rules as aforesaid.

Power to
licence.

4.—(1.) The Governor shall, once at least in every three years during which a person is detained in custody under a sentence of preventive detention, take into consideration the condition, history, and circumstances of that person with a view to determining whether he shall be placed out on licence, and, if so, on what conditions.

(2.) The Governor may at any time discharge on licence a person undergoing preventive detention if satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that he will abstain from crime and lead a useful and industrious life or that he is no longer capable of engaging in crime, or that for any other reason it is desirable to release him from confinement in prison, and shall so discharge such a person at the expiration of ten years from the commencement of the term of preventive detention unless the Governor has definite reason to believe that, if released, he will relapse into crime.

(3.) The Governor, if he does not so discharge such person at the expiration of ten years from the commencement of the term of preventive detention, shall make a special report to the Secretary of State stating the grounds upon which he has decided not to discharge him.

(4.) A person so discharged on licence may be discharged on probation, and on condition that he be placed under the supervision or authority of any society or person named in the licence who may be willing to take charge of the case, or on such other conditions as may be specified in the licence.

(5.) The Inspector of Prisons shall report periodically to the Governor on the conduct and industry of persons undergoing preventive detention, and their prospects and probable behaviour on release, and for this purpose shall be assisted by a committee at each prison in which such persons are detained, consisting of such persons of either sex as the Governor may from time to time appoint.

(6.) Every such committee shall hold meetings, at such intervals of not more than six months as may be prescribed, for the purpose of personally interviewing persons undergoing preventive detention in the prison and preparing reports embodying such information respecting the persons undergoing preventive detention in the prison as may be necessary for the assistance of the Directors, and may at any other times hold such other meetings, and make such special reports respecting particular cases, as they may think necessary.

(7.) A licence under this section may be in such form and may contain such conditions as may be prescribed by the Governor.

(8.) The provisions relating to licences to be at large granted to persons undergoing penal servitude shall not apply to persons undergoing preventive detention.

The annual report of the Inspector of Prisons shall state, as regards each person undergoing preventive detention, the place where he is detained, the date at which his term of preventive detention commenced, the number and dates of his previous convictions, together with the crimes which led up to them, and such other particulars as the Governor may consider desirable in the public interest.

Provisions
as to persons placed out on licence.

5 —(1.) The society or person under whose supervision or authority a person is so placed shall periodically, in accordance with regulations made by the Governor, report to the Governor on the conduct and circumstances of that person.

(2.) A licence under this Ordinance may be revoked at any time by the Governor, and where a licence has been revoked, the person to whom the licence related shall return to the prison, and if he fails to do so may be apprehended without warrant and taken to prison.

(3.) If a person absent from prison under such a licence escapes from the supervision of the society or person in whose charge he is placed, or commits any breach of the conditions contained in the licence, he shall be considered thereby to have forfeited the licence, and shall be taken back to prison.

(4.) The Stipendiary Magistrate of the district where the prison from which a person has been discharged on licence is situate, or where such a person is found, may, on information on oath that the licence has been forfeited under this section, issue a warrant for his apprehension, and he shall, on apprehension, be brought before a Magistrate, who, if satisfied that the licence has been forfeited, shall order him to be remitted to preventive detention, and may commit him to any prison within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate until he can conveniently be removed to a prison or part of a prison set apart for the purpose of the confinement of persons undergoing preventive detention.

absolutely.

6. Without prejudice to any other powers of discharge, the Governor may at any time discharge absolutely any person discharged conditionally on licence under this Ordinance, and shall so discharge him at the expiration of five years from the time when he was first discharged on licence if satisfied that he has been observing the conditions of his licence and abstaining from crime.

Interpretation.

In this Ordinance "Crime" means any felony or the offence of uttering false or counterfeit coin, or of possessing counterfeit gold or silver coin, or the offence of obtaining goods or money by false pretences, or the offence of conspiracy to defraud, or any misdemeanour under section two hundred and thirty-five of the Indictable Offences Ordinance, 1893.

Suspending Clause.

THE following Report on the area under cultivation in British Guiana, with varieties of sugar-cane other than the Bourbon, is published for general information.

OSCAR WEBER,
Secretary, Board of Agriculture.

VARIETIES OF SUGAR-CANE OTHER THAN BOURBON IN BRITISH GUIANA, 1909-1910.

The following is a summary compiled from the returns rendered to the Sugar-Cane Experiments Committee of the areas under cultivation with varieties of sugar-cane other than Bourbon for the crops of 1909-1910.

Returns have been furnished by every estate in the Colony on which varieties of sugar-cane are being cultivated.

Varieties of sugar-canes other than Bourbon are being grown on areas of more than one acre on 25 Plantations in the County of Demerara, 5 in the County of Essequibo, and 10 in the County of Berbice; or on 40 Plantations in British Guiana.

Many of the Plantations which are growing varieties of sugar-cane on relatively large scales have nurseries of several or of many varieties, the cultivation of which it is intended to gradually extend.

The areas occupied by varieties other than Bourbon on the estates vary very greatly, from 9 acres as the minimum on any estate to 7,101 as the maximum.

One Plantation in Demerara has an area of 6,843 acres occupied by seedling varieties of sugar-cane, while one in Berbice has 3,037 acres similarly occupied.

The following shows the various acreages devoted to the varieties other than Bourbon :—

In addition to the foregoing, three thousand and fifty-two acres are returned as occupied with mixed varieties or with nurseries of new varieties of canes.

Out of 38,972 acres returned as being occupied with varieties of sugar-cane other than Bourbon, 37,753 acres are being cultivated with new varieties raised from seed. Of these 9,355 acres, equal to 24.7% of the total area, are planted with new varieties of sugar-cane raised in Barbados by Mr. J. R. Bovell.

On several estates in addition to the area occupied solely by varieties of sugar-canes other than Bourbon, there are wide areas which are planted with Bourbon largely interspersed with newer kinds of sugar-canes.

The following tables show the varieties of sugar-cane other than Bourbon which have been returned as being cultivated on areas amounting to over 100 acres during the crops of 1902-1909 :—

By Command,

JAMES DRYSDALE,
Acting Clerk of Council.

GEORGETOWN PUBLIC FREE LIBRARY.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Made pursuant to section 9, sub-section 2 of the Georgetown Public Free Library Ordinance, 1908 (No. 12 of 1908.)

1. In construing these Rules and Regulations the word "Library" shall include the several rooms, entrances, passages, staircases and outside premises thereof, and the word "Book" shall include newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets, pictures, engravings, photographs, maps, plans, and other articles of a like nature.

2. The Librarian of the Library shall have the general charge of the Library and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of the books.

3. No person shall be permitted to pass within the reserved enclosures, or to remove any books from the shelves without the special permission of the Librarian.

4. The Library shall be open to the public every day except Sundays and Public Holidays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 3.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. The Library Committee, may, at its discretion, order the whole or any of the departments of the Library to be closed. The lending department shall be closed each day at 5.30 p.m.

5. No person who is in a state of intoxication or is uncleanly in person or dress, or who is suffering from an infectious or offensive disease, shall be admitted or allowed to remain in the Library. No person shall be allowed to lie on the benches or chairs or to sleep in the Library, or interfere with the arrangements thereof or use the same for any purpose for which it is not intended. No conversation shall be permitted in any part of the building, and no person shall smoke, partake of refreshment or bring any dog upon the premises.

The admission of children under fourteen years of age to any public part of the Library and the use of any book therein shall be in the discretion of the Librarian.

6. Persons above the age of fourteen years resident in the colony are eligible for borrowing books on producing a voucher duly certified by a guarantor. Any guarantor who signs such voucher makes himself personally responsible in damages for any loss of, or injury to, any book or books which may be borrowed by the person for whom he has vouched.

Such guarantee shall remain in force twelve months unless terminated by the Committee or withdrawn by the guarantor previously; but the Committee shall not be bound to accept any person as a guarantor. But no guarantor shall be relieved unless he is clear of all or any liability for books already borrowed. Only members of the following classes of persons, resident in Georgetown may become guarantors for the above purpose.

- (a.) Members of Combined Court.
- (b.) Town Councillors.
- (c.) Ratepayers.
- (d.) Barristers or Solicitors.
- (e.) Ministers of Religion.
- (f.) Medical Practitioners.
- (g.) Heads of any Government Department.
- (h.) Heads of any Mercantile Firm or Business.
- (i.) Graduates of any British University.

7. The aforesaid voucher shall be in such form and shall have inserted thereon such particulars as the Committee may from time to time determine; and shall be procurable only from the Librarian.

8. After being properly filled in and properly signed the voucher must be presented at the Library, and if, on examination, it is found correct, a borrower's ticket will be issued to the applicant, after three clear days (excluding Sundays) shall have elapsed. This ticket must be produced and left whenever a book is borrowed. Anyone, except the authorized holder of the ticket or someone on his behalf, making use of the same for the purpose of obtaining a book will be liable to prosecution.

9. A borrower shall consult the catalogue of the Library on borrowing; and the borrower's ticket number, as well as the number and class letter of the book wanted must be written by the borrower on one of the slips provided for that purpose.

10. All books borrowed must, unless the issue be renewed, be returned to the Library within fifteen days including the day of issue and return, under a penalty of one cent for every day or portion of a day that a book is detained beyond the specified time. When books are kept twenty-one days, notices will be sent to the borrowers; and if the book is not returned within twenty-eight days from its last issue, the book shall be regarded as lost and the guarantor shall become liable for the same, and the borrower's ticket shall be liable to forfeiture.

Monthly Periodicals, whenever lent out, must be returned within four days and quarterly periodicals within six days, otherwise the borrower will be liable to the same penalty of one cent per day.

All books must be returned without regard to the date of issue on or before the first Saturday in August, as the Library will then be closed for ten days for the annual stock-taking. In default thereof a fine of twenty-four cents will be incurred, and the ticket will be liable to forfeiture.

The Library Committee may at its discretion call in books by means of notices posted in the Library, and published in the "Official Gazette," when it is imperative that all books be at once returned, on pain of forfeiture of the borrower's ticket.

11. When books are returned, they must be delivered at the proper desk or counter to the Librarian or one of the Assistant Librarians, the borrowers being held responsible for books not so delivered. Borrowers are specially warned against allowing books to get wet in transit to and from the Library. If any book be not returned in accordance with the regulations, or if it be returned torn, cut, soiled, written in, or with leaves turned down, or otherwise injured, the borrower or, in his default, the guarantor shall pay such a sum of money as will replace such book, or the set of books to which it belongs, or be a full compensation for the damage or loss sustained by the Library.

12. No borrower shall be allowed to have more than one work at the same time, and books may not be exchanged on the day of issue. The issue of any book, can, upon application and presentation of the book, be renewed once, if not required by another person. Borrowers should attend personally to receive and return books if possible. When they are unable to attend personally, they must send a responsible messenger competent to deliver their messages and to take due care of the books. The Librarian is empowered to refuse books to messengers considered unfit for acting as such messenger.

13. Borrowers may secure, in their turn, the issue of any particular book by paying two cents. A post-card notice will then be sent to the borrower as soon as the required book is available, and the book will then be reserved for such borrower for two days after such notice is posted.

14. Borrowers shall give notice in writing of any change in their address, or that of their guarantors, within seven days of such change. Inattention to this regulation will render the borrower's ticket liable to forfeiture. Borrowers leaving the colony, or ceasing to use the Library are required to return their tickets to the Librarian, so that their vouchers may be cancelled, otherwise they and their guarantors will be held responsible for any books taken out in their names.

15. Borrowers are specially cautioned against losing their tickets, as they and their guarantors will be held responsible for any books which may be taken out in their names, until the period for which the ticket is granted has expired. The Librarian must at once be informed of the loss of any ticket. A new ticket to replace the lost ticket will then be granted on payment of six cents, but subject to the same responsibilities as before.

16. No person suffering from an infectious disease shall borrow, read, or use any book from the Library, nor shall any person having a book from the Library permit the same to be used by anyone suffering from an infectious disease. In cases where infectious disease has broken out in the borrower's house since the books have been borrowed, the proper course is not to return the books to the Library but to immediately inform the Librarian of the fact, and proper steps for the disinfection and return of such books will then be taken.

17. In using the Reference Room no person shall be allowed to consult the books in the Library without first writing his true name, place of abode, and the number and title of the work required, upon the application form provided for that purpose, and the signature to such form shall be deemed to be an assent to these Rules and Regulations. Books so obtained must not, upon any pretence whatever, be taken from the Library but must be returned into the hands of the Librarian or an Assistant Librarian. Only one work can be obtained on the same form, but other works may be had by filling up a separate form for each. Works classed as "Fiction" shall not be obtained for reading in any part of the Library.

18. No person shall upon any pretence whatever, remove any papers or periodicals from the Reference Room, or Reading Room, and no person shall be allowed to retain any newspaper longer than ten minutes, or any periodical or magazine more than fifteen minutes after the same has been applied for by any other person.

19 No person shall write upon, soil, damage, mutilate, deface, or otherwise injure any book, or the doors, walls, or windows of the Library, or the furniture fittings, or any other property thereof.

20. The Librarian or any Assistant Librarian may stop any act which he or she thinks calculated to cause damage to any book, or property of the Library.

21. A book shall be kept in which any proposal or complaint may be entered for the consideration of the Library Committee.

22. Any person neglecting or refusing to comply with these Rules and Regulations may be excluded from the use of the Library for such period as the Library Committee may determine, and shall further be liable to be prosecuted before a Magistrate and, if convicted, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars, or to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding one month.

23. The Librarian or any Official of the Library, or any Police or Town Constable may remove or exclude from the Library any person who is not using it for the purpose for which it is intended, or who has been found guilty of a breach of these Rules and Regulations.

Made by "The Committee of the Georgetown Public Free Library" and approved by the Governor-in-Council under section nine of the Georgetown Public Free Library Ordinance, 1908, this 9th day of August, 1909.

By Command,

JAMES DRYSDALE,
Acting Clerk of Council.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

J. P. HASTINGS

versus

M. BUGLE & Co.

An objection was raised in this case that the writ is not sufficiently endorsed to enable judgment to be given on it. An affidavit of defence was filed. There is no doubt, in my mind, that the writ is not endorsed sufficiently for the purpose of obtaining judgment on it as a specially endorsed writ.

Following the recent decision of the Full Court in Lewis v. Williams, I give unconditional leave to defend.

It is always open to the defendants to move for further and better particulars if such a course is rendered necessary.

Costs will be costs in the cause.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

J. P. HASTINGS

versus

M. BUGLE & Co.

A similar objection was raised in this second case between the same parties.

This writ was also not sufficiently endorsed to enable me to give judgment. I give leave to defend unconditionally. Costs to be costs in the cause.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

BOODHANSING

versus

N. WILSON AND ORS.

This is an application by and on behalf of William Argyle (or Angyle), Robert Griffith, Nathaniel Phillips and Solomon Emanuel Phillips, four of the defendants asking for an order striking out their names as defendants in the above action and extending the time for filing appearance and defence in this action (if necessary) to 10 days after decision herein by the seven first defendants who appear by the same solicitor.

A preliminary objection was raised that as there had been no appearance by or on behalf of the movers the motion is not properly before the Court. As I stated at the hearing I cannot understand why appearance was not entered as by O. x., r. 13 a defendant may appear at any time before judgment. There is no necessity for an order of Court to enable him to appear but if he appear at any time after the time limited by the writ for appearance he shall not, unless the Court or Judge shall otherwise order, be entitled to any further time for delivering his defence "or for any other purpose than if he had appeared according to the writ."

After entering such appearance a defendant must approach the Court for an extension of time on which to file his defence. By O. x., r. 20 a defendant before entering an appearance shall be at liberty without obtaining an order to enter or entering a conditional appearance to apply to the Court or a Judge to set aside the service upon him of the writ, or of notice of the writ, or to discharge the order authorizing such service.

In this matter which is an opposition suit the parties apparently from what was said in Court did not retain their Solicitor until after the time allowed for appearance. The writ was issued on 27th May, 1909. It was served on William Argyle, Mary Ann Argyle, Solomon Emanuel Phillips, Robert Griffith and Jacob von Hermanstein, on the 4th June, 1909, and on Alexander Phillips on the next day. Henry Melville was served with his writ on the 7th June, 1909, and Henry Melville, the father of Nathaniel Wilson, had his sons summons left with him, why or wherefore is not shown. On the 1st July, 1909, application was made to enter this action on the hearing list for hearing ex parte.

By O. xiv., r. 13, "The Court or Judge may at any stage of the proceedings either upon or without the application of either party and on such terms as may appear to the Court or Judge to be just order that the names of any parties improperly joined whether as plaintiffs or as defendants be struck out," and by Rule 14 any application to add or strike out or substitute a plaintiff or defendant may be made to the Court or a Judge at any time before trial or at the trial of the action in a summary manner."

To make such an application, however, the defendant must put himself in order.

In Hill v. Rimell, 2 Mylne and Craig, 642, The Lord

Chancellor said that as until appearance the defendant had not submitted to the jurisdiction the Court would not authorize any proceeding by which he might be prejudiced unless a special case was made to justify immediate interference. In that case a notice of motion was served on the defendant before he appeared to the bill.

The principle as laid down by the Lord Chancellor is a general one and I think is applicable here—the defendants had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court when they filed their motion and although leave was asked to enter an appearance (which was not necessary), I am of opinion that appearance should have been entered before the motion was filed.

By Rule 1 of O. xii., which deals with specially endorsed writs, the appearance of the defendant shall be deemed to be an entry of appearance in the action showing clearly that when a writ is not specially endorsed a mere appearance is insufficient.

Although the Court is not inclined to favour highly technical objections, I think this is an objection which must prevail. There is nothing to prevent the defendant from entering an appearance now and filing a fresh motion.

I dismiss this application with costs, which I fix at $15.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF JULY, 1909.

ROBERT A. JOE, Appellant,

versus

R. S. WILLIAMS, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate of the South Essequibo Judicial District, who dismissed a claim for $100 in full satisfaction of $100 80 as damages and pecuniary compensation for the loss sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the wrongful and unlawful acts of the defendant, the excess being abandoned to bring the matter within the jurisdiction of the Court.

The particulars of damages were:—7 beds of rice planted at lot 1, Canesfield, Leguan, producing 9 bags of paddy each bed, 63 bags at $1.60 per bag $ 100 80

Less abandoned 80

$ 100 00

The reasons for appeal are:—

That the decision is erroneous in point of law inasmuch as

(a) The Magistrate was wrong in deciding that the plaintiff's claim could not be sustained, because, at the time of the conversion of the crops growing on the land, the said land was in custody of the Court.

(b) The Magistrate was wrong in deciding that the plaintiff, because he levied on the said land for a debt due to him by the owner of the said land, had lost his interest in the crops as growing on the said land.

(c) It was proved at the hearing that the said growing crops were planted by and belonged to the appellant, and was so planted with the consent of Boodhoo, and he, the appellant, was, at the time of the wrong complained of, in possession and occupation of the said land, with the consent of the said Boodhoo, the owner, by transport, of the said land, and it having been so proved, it was competent for him to bring the said action notwithstanding such levy.

(d) The said growing crops not being part of the soil, and, therefore, not being attached in execution, the appellant was entitled to maintain his action for damages for the loss sustained by the wrongful conversion, by the defendant, of the plaintiff's crops.

Reason (d) was abandoned.

The Magistrate, in his reasons for decision, held that the plaintiff had forfeited his interest in and to the land when he levied, and, as his right to the crops, as claimed, depended on his interest in the land, he could not succeed.

According to the history of the case the rice was grown on land which has been the subject of more than one legal step, it being claimed by defendant and one Boodhoo, but, as matters stood at the hearing, Boodhoo was the holder of the legal title by transport.

The plaintiff was undoubtedly in possession of lot 1 (on which the rice was planted), for some months, it having been sold to him by Boodhoo. Plaintiff also owned a house on the lot, the bona fides of the purchase of which is not disputed. Finding he could not obtain transport from Boodhoo, the plaintiff brought an action for the sum of $40, which he had paid Boodhoo, and getting judgment levied on the immovable property of Boodhoo, that is to say, lot 1, sections A, B and C, part of Canesfield, Leguan. This levy was withdrawn but a second levy was made and a watchman was put in charge by the Registrar. Before the land was sold the defendant forcibly reaped the crop of rice.

We have then this state of things, plaintiff levies on the land of his judgment debtor on which are his own growing crops, the defendant, who claims the land but has not obtained the legal title while the land is in custodia legis, cuts the rice, threshes it, and carries it to his factory.

The point to be considered is the position of the parties.

In the judgment of Patteson J. in Balme v. Hutton, 9 Bingham 179, the following remarks occur: "The writ commands the Sheriff to take goods of A, he takes goods which have been the property of A and are still in his possession, though in point of law they have ceased to be his property if certain contingent events happen, but no other person at that time has the right of possession."

It was argued that the fact that appellant was reaping the rice showed that he was permitted to do so by the Registrar but there is nothing to show this was so. Indeed the directions of the Registrar to the watchman were distinct as to not allowing any one to trespass on the land. As no one was entitled to the possession of the lot or of what was growing on it except the Marshal, any one interfering with what was in custodia legis was a trespasser.

No question could arise as to the rights of a third party.

There is no doubt that the respondent also committed a trespass but, in my opinion, the Magistrate was right in holding that the appellant was divested of the possession and could not recover as plaintiff in an action such as he brought.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

LIMITED JURSDICTION.

THIS 10TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

KING
versus
KING.

After careful consideration I do not allow costs in the application for further particulars.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C J.

THIS 13TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

Petition of JOAO GOMES D'AGUIAR by his Attorney in this Colony HENRIQUE GOMES FARIA.

The Petitioner applies for an order on the Registrar to pay over to him the sum of $111 92, being the amount of a judgment and costs for rent out of the proceeds of the sale at execution at the instance of Smith Bros. & Co., Limited, of certain furniture, &c., of a boarding house.

In the report it is submitted that the procedure is wrong as it ought to be by application to the Court under OXL, r. 1. This order only refers to applications in actions. There is no action between the parties.

It is also submitted that section 13 of the Rent Recovery Ordinance has not been complied with. That Ordinance only applies to rents of premises not over $20 a month. In this case the rent was $60 a month.

Counsel were heard and it was argued that as the petitioner had obtained judgment for the rent his legal hypothec as landlord was merged in the judgment and, therefore, could not prevail against Smith Bros. & Co., Limited, who were execution creditors.

One feature in the matter is that Smith Brothers allowed the furniture to remain in the possession of the tenant under such circumstances as would necessarily lead the landlord to believe that the goods belonged to the tenant.

In Voet 46. 2. 1, it is stated that by compulsory or judicial novation such as that resulting from a judgment, special rights are not lost unless they are personal, and a cessionary is bringing an action ceded to him.

There is no procedure laid down locally that I am aware of, for bringing to the notice of the Registrar a claim for rent when it exceeds $20 a month as is provided for by the Rent Recovery Ordinance and a landlord is bound to obtain judgment.

Notice of the judgment for rent was given to the Registrar before the goods were sold and while they were still on the premises. Is this sufficient?

In 2 Nathan p 940 (1009), it is said "A landlord's tacit hypothec, in order to be made effective, must be confirmed by attachment in pursuance of judicial process." Van der Kessel states: "This right should be exercised, or in order to preserve it, the things should be put under arrest before they are carried away from the land." The procedure appears to me to be that stated by Laurence, J.P. in the case of Bushing v. Kinnear, 5 Juta Griqualand Reports p. 255, to be "the ordinary and proper remedy for landlords to adopt in cases of this kind, where they have reason to apprehend the removal of the invecta, is to apply for an interdict against such removal pending an action to be brought for the recovery of the rent, or else, in cases within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, to make an affidavit and obtain an attachment."

In the case of Reed v. Buckley, 7 E.D.R., p. 12, a very similar point arose as in this matter. The landlord gave a written notice of a claim for rent upon the party who had taken out a writ of execution, and the Court held that the landlord undoubtedly had the right to enforce his right of legal hypothec by judicial attachment in the usual manner, but he elected to take an unusual course and merely give notice of the existence of a right which he might have perfected by further proceedings which he did not take.

It is clear that in cases such as this a writ of execution ought to be obtained and the goods attached. This has not been done, and the petitioner has not gone far enough to preserve his hypothec.

The prayer of the petition is refused. I allow no costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 11TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

FRANCIS VIEIRA, Appellant,
versus

J. A. CORREIA, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of a Magistrate in the Georgetown Judicial District who dismissed a claim by the appellant for $51 20, balance of an account for empty lemonade bottles.

The reasons for appeal are:—

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law:

(a) Because it was admitted at the hearing that the goods sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant, were received by the defendant on the date of the said sale and delivery as alleged in the plaintiff's claim.

(b) Because it was admitted at the hearing that the 40 dozens empty lemonade corked bottles at 16 cents per dozen, amounting to the sum of $6 40, were and was respectively received on account of the aforesaid sale and delivery, leaving a balance in favour of the plaintiff of $51 20.

(c) Because the value, $57 60, of the 120 dozens empty lemonade split bottles were admitted at the hearing.

(d) Because there was no return of the 120 dozens bottles, claimed for by the plaintiff, proved as pleaded by the defendant.

(e) Because it was for the defendant to, and he failed to, prove a loan of the 120 dozens bottles which he admitted having received from the plaintiff.

(f) Because the book kept by the defendant at Buxton, East Coast, Demerara, would not and cannot and does not prove the delivery of bottles to the plaintiff in Georgetown.

(g) Because there was no return of the 120 dozens bottles, the value of which, $57 60, was claimed for, less $6 40, received on account proved by the defendant as alleged in his plea.

(h) Because the plaintiff was entitled to succeed on his claim after the admission made by the defendant.

2. That illegal evidence has been admitted by the Magistrate's Court, in which case there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence.

(a) All evidence which was admitted by the Magistrate at variance and inconsistent with the plea or defence of the defendant, which plea or defence was the guide of the plaintiff in proving his case.

(b) Evidence which the witnesses of the plaintiff was never cross-examined about or upon and so affording the plaintiff the opportunity of being prepared to meet.

(c) The book tendered by the defendant's last witness for the defence and admitted by the Magistrate upon which, he the Magistrate, has based his decision on the matter.

Some of the reasons of appeal are a little difficult to understand.

Reasons a, b and c, are of no avail for the defence before the Magistrate was a denial of buying the bottles and the plaintiff's own evidence went to show that when returned they were to be credited and the question was, were they returned or not, a question of evidence.

Reason (d) was also a pure question of evidence.

Reason (e) is disposed of by the plaintiff's own evidence as to the terms of crediting the bottles returned: it is also a question of evidence.

Reason (f) I cannot agree with. A book of accounts may be used as evidence in support of a defence if the Court is satisfied it was kept in the course of business with a reasonable degree of regularity, section 15, Ordinance 20 of 1893. The Magistrate in his reason for decision refers to the books kept in the ordinary course of business.

Reason (g) is also based on evidence and was for the Magistrate to decide.

Reason (h) is in the same category as reasons a, b and c.

Reason 2 (a) is inept; the evidence adduced was to the effect that nothing was owing on the 120 dozens of bottles as it was alleged they were returned.

Reason (b) I do not understand.

Reason (c) has been already dealt with.

The case, as put before the Magistrate, was one of evidence, pure and simple, and I think he was, on the whole, justified in the decision he arrived at.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
23rd August, 1909.

79.
HIS Excellency the Acting Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Report on the results obtained with various varieties of sugar-canes on Sugar Plantations during the year ended the 31st December, 1908.

By Command,

J. DRYSDALE,
Acting Assistant Government Secretary.

SCIENCE AND AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT,
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA,
26th June, 1909.

Sir,—I have the honour, on behalf of the Sugar-Cane Experiments Committee of the Board of Agriculture, to forward the following report on the results of the cultivations of varieties of canes carried on on sugar-plantations in this colony during the two crops of the year ended December 31, 1908.

2. These results have received the careful consideration of the Sugar-Cane Experiments Committee and the records which are included in this report are those which that Committee consider are accurate and reliable.

3. Thirty-five of the plantations, which carried on the cultivation of varieties of canes on the large scale during the crops, placed their results at the disposal of the Board. The following shows the number of trials with certain varieties of canes, the acreage occupied therewith, and the number of tons of commercial sugar made from them during the two crops of the year 1908-1909 :—

Variety.	No. of reappings reported.	Acreage occupied.	Tons of Commercial Sugar made.
Bourbon	47	20,516	36,486
D 625	67	7,162	15,076
D 109	59	7,989	12,370
208 B	24	4,702	10,148
D 145	37	2,651	5,564
147 B	22	1,269	2,107
White Transparent	13	617	829
Green Transparent (Salangore)	3	173	381
D 95	4	125	172
109 B	6	122	162
Sealy	7	111	158
D 116	4	48	98
B 376	5	31	70
D 78	3	29	36
D 117	3	27	35
D 115	4	14	16

4. The following gives the mean yields deduced from the returns—the average of the experiments as plant canes and ratoons with a variety on a plantation during each crop being regarded as a unit—and the true average yields of commercial sugar in tons per acre :—

Variety.	Mean.	Average.
B 376	2.17	2.27
Green Transparent (Salangore)	2.04	2.20
D 625	2.03	2.15
D 145	1.90	2.10
208 B	1.88	2.15
Sealy	1.88	1.43
147 B	1.84	1.70
Bourbon	1.77	1.77
109 B	1.59	1.33
D 109	1.56	1.56
D 95	1.47	1.37
D 116	1.43	2.04
White Transparent	1.27	1.34
D 117	1.21	1.32
D 78	1.16	1.25
D 115	1.14	1.12

The mean yields do not represent the actual yields per acre obtained, the areas of the experiments varying greatly; but as they are affected more by the locality of the experiments and less by the area in one locality than are the true averages, they form in my opinion, the more reliable guides to the relative general values of the varieties.

Many trials with other varieties were reported, but as they were either small-scale experiments, in which each variety occupied an area less than one acre, or in which a variety had been experimented upon on fewer than three plantations, the results, although interesting, are not included in the above.

As in former years the value of the data varies greatly; the results recorded where the cultivation of the varieties extended over large areas and on many plantations being more reliable than where the areas were small and especially where the number of trials reported were few.

5. The following table shows the various plantations from which returns giving the yields in tons of commercial sugar per acre of the better known varieties of sugar-canes were received. In this table the varieties, of which reports have been supplied from any plantation, are indicated by the signs 1, 2 and †, the first showing the kind of cane reported as having given the highest average return of commercial sugar per acre on the plantation, the second showing that which gave the next best average return of commercial sugar per acre on the plantation, and the third indicating other varieties which were cultivated. Its summary shows the number of plantations on which each variety was cultivated, the number of plantations on which it was reported to have given the highest yield, and the number on which it ranked second :—

6. In order to carry out, so far as feasible with the information available, the recommendation that the records should be grouped so as to show the differences in yields resulting from differences in soil and meteorological conditions, the returns, as calculated from the data sent, showing the average yields of the various varieties on each estate have been grouped as follows:—

1. Essequibo.
2. West Demerara.
3. Demerara River.
4. East Demerara.
5. West and East Berbice.
6. Berbice River.

The results on two estates, Versailles and Houston, which are situated on the banks of the Demerara River, have been included among those of West and East Demerara, respectively, as their soil and meteorological conditions are more closely allied to those of the coast estates than to the conditions characterising the river estates—Nismes, Wales, and Diamond.

The following show the results thus grouped; the principal varieties being arranged in the order of their mean yields of tons of commercial sugar per acre which are given opposite each sort; and the excesses or deficits of the yields being compared as percentages with the mean of the yields of the various kinds:—

Some of the value of these comparisons is lost by only a few trials having been reported upon with certain of the varieties in the various districts.

Compared with the yields of the Bourbon taken as 100 for each district the more important of the varieties show the following results :—

7. The following table has been drawn up from the reports received which showed separately the yields of sugar per acre from various varieties of canes for the early months and for the later months of the year. This illustrates the effects of the dry weather in 1907 upon the yields during the earlier months of 1908 and of the seasonable weather experienced during the latter year upon the yields towards its end :—
